CATALOGVE and true Note of the Names of such Persons, which (vpon good liking they haue to the worke, being a great helpe to Memorie) haue received the Etymological DICTIONARIE of XI. Languages, viz. English, Brittainish or Welch, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguez, High-Dutch, Low-Dutch, Latine, Greeke, Hebrew: with the Reasons and Deriuations of words in all these Tongues, with the exposition of the Termes of the Lawes of this Land, and the description of Offices, and Titles of Dignities, from the hands of Maister MENSHEV the Author and Publisher of the same in Print; In consideration they find, that by compiling and printing the same at his own charge, for the Publike good, and the aduancement of Learning and Knowledge, he hath not onely exhausted and spent thereon all his Stocke and Substance, but also run himselfe into many and great Debts, vnpossible for him euer to pay, without assistance of the like Receiuers of the said Bookes from his hands: In regard the Company of Stationers of London vtterly refusing to buy them from him; He is forced to tender them himselfe, to such like worthy Persons as are heere in this Catalogue truly set downe. The Truth whereof if any question or doubt of, they may enquire of any, whose Names he heere presumes to publish to witnesse the same: offering himselfe to any censure, if he shall set downe any name or thing heerein, that agrees not with the approoued verity. All which, as himselfe, he referres to all mens worthy Natures & generous Interpretations, remaining hopefull of them, as to these already much in duty bound, if they may be pleased vpon the sight & reading of so many Names of Noblenes and worth, to follow their example in their fauour to good letters, to help to take off the rest of his Bookes. In doing whereof, their Names are likewise to be inserted into this Catalogue with the former, and the Author to remaine in like maner equally to them as to the rest for euer obliged & bound to do them Honour and Service.

If in setting downe these Names there hath not bene obserued the respect due to the rankes and qualities of Persons, He intreats the Reader to vnderstand that he hath not done it out of neglect of the regard he owes to them, but onely to follow the order he vsed in the deliury of the Bookes to them, which was not according to their Degrees but promiscuously as they tooke them.

SECVNDA EPISTOLA LECTORI.

The Second Epistle to the Reader.

IN the search of Tongues (in which these many yeares I haue spent my time and substance) I haue alwayes found that the true knowledge and the sure holding of them in our memories, consisted, in the knowing of them, by their Causes, Originalls, and Etymologies, that is, their reasons and deriuations, which is the scope I ayme at in this my Worke Etymologicall, deriued from the Greeke Ετυμολογία true, and Λόγος speech, as Orthographie is said of ὀρθός right, and γραφία writing. In my Latine Epistle to the Reader I haue alleaged sundry Authors, of high learning, both ancient and moderne, which haue written whole bookes of this Subiect, and a great number more could I here produce, out of all I haue gathered, as much as I could in manie yeeres search, and haue as well as I could, applied it to my Countreyes vse; by laying the languages so together that are of one sound, (which I may terme a harmony of Tongues) for that thou mayest with little or no labour, well learne, and fast hold in thy memorie, these languages so layd together: wherefore, for thy better vnderstanding, I giue thee this further instruction, as an Introduction to the same, and say, that many languages differ one from another, but by these figures, * Prothesis, Aphæresis, Epenthesis, Syncope, Paragoge, Apocope, Metathesis, &c. which I expound in English thus; Prothesis, a putting to of a letter or syllable, to the beginning of a word; Aphæresis, a taking away of a letter or syllable from the beginning of a word; Epenthesis, a putting betweene of a letter or syllable, in the middle of a word; Syncope, a taking away, or cutting of a letter or syllable from the middle of a word; Paragoge, a putting to a letter or syllable to the end of a word; Apocope, the taking away, or cutting of a letter or syllable, from the end of a word; Metathesis, a transposition when one letter is put for another or in anothers place. All which figures, you may see better expounded from the Greeke, in this Dictionarie in their proper places, which figures vsed thorow the whole course of this worke, almost in euery word, you may well finde, before you come to the Etymologie of the words, all which being so helpfull to true vnderstanding and memorie, that it might be a sufficient motiue, to men that haue meanes, and desire knowledge, to giue themselues to the vnderstanding of the Tongues from their Originalls, the Keyes to vnlocke the Doores, into the Treasurie of all Learning, Diuine and humane: For if we doe but looke in the Etymologies but of the very names of men in the holy Scripture, we shall see, what light they giue, even to the vnderstanding of the story, and do but marke the Hebrew wordes beginning in * אב Ab, to signifie a father, בן Ben, a sonne or building, * Beer a well, or wildernesse, * בית Beth a house, and multitudes of others, in other syllables, of other significations, thorow the whole course of the Bible, deriued not onely from the Hebrew, Chaldie, and Syriack, but also from the Greeke, and Latine, and so to consider the middle and end of words, what they signifie by Etymologizing and deriuing them aright, you shall see what vnderstanding they bring into stories: as for example, the * Patriarke Abram, which is by interpretation, a high father, deriued from the Hebrew אב pater, a father, and רם ram excelsus, high; but when his name was changed into Abraham, Gen. 17. 5. where it is said, neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham, for a father of many nations haue I made thee, Gen. 17. 5. and Rom. 4. 17. the word אברהם Abraham in the Hebrew, importeth the same, being recomounded of אברם Abram, pater excelsus, a high father (as aboue) and חם ham, multitudo, a multitude, so the words in Hebrew אברהם Abram-Ham, signifie a high father of multitudes, and by the figure Syncope, taking away מ m from the middle, is made אברהם Abraham; so * Iaakob. Iaakob his name was called, because in his birth he did יעקב Iaakob, that is, bold his brother Esau by the יעקב gnekeb, that is, the heele, Gen. chap. 25. vers. 26. but Esau his brother, after he was deceiued by him of the blessing, interpreteth his name יעקב Iagnakob, Iaakob, of יעקב gnekeb, supplantauit, he hath supplanted or tripped יעקב gnekeb, the heele, Gen. 27. 36. but when Iaakob had wrestled with the Angel, and would not let him goe, till he was blessed by him, Gen. 32. 26, 27. he said, Thy name shall be called Iaakob no more, but * Israel, because thou hast power with God, Gen. 32. 28. which commeth of the Hebrew ישר Ith vir, a man, and שרה sharah, prauuluit, he hath prauailed with יי El, God of יי cial, fortitudo: looke in the word God, in this Dictionarie, there may you see the Tenne names of God in the Hebrew, * באנימין Benjamin, is interpreted, the sonne of the right hand, of the Hebrew בן Ben, a sonne, and ימין iamin the right hand, for his father Iaakob loned him decreely, Gen. 44. vers. 22. & 29. & 30. * Ben-oni. he was called by Rachel his mother * Ben-oni, the sonne of sorrow, for that she died in trauell with him, Gen. 35. 18. of the Hebrew בן Ben, a sonne, and עני oni, sorrow, so * באר Beer, a well, * Beer. Num. 21. 16. and Beersheba, the well of the oath, of the Hebrew באר Beer, a well, and שבע Schabang, iuravit, he swore, as it is written, wherefore he called that place Beersheba, because there they swore both of them, Gen. 21. 31. of this word Beer, may well come the Low-dutch and English, Boorne, a place full of pits and welles of water, and of them, the names of Townes, as Lamboorne, Aboorne, and many others scituated on such Boornes, so * Beth, a house, and Bethel, the house of God, the place where Iaakob slept, and dreamed he saw a ladder, that the toppe thereof reached vnto heauen, then Iaakob awoke, and said, Surely the Lord is in this place, this is none other but the house of God, and called the name of the place Bethel, Gen. 28. verse 16. 17. 18. 19. of the Hebrew בית baijth, domus, a house, and יי El, Deus, God, so Beth-eden, the house of pleasure, Amos 1. 5. of בית baijth, a house, and ען gneden, delicie, pleasure, of ען gnadan, delectari, to delight, and many more in Beth in the Bible, signifying a house: * דניאל Daniel, the iudgement of God, of דן Dan, iudgement, and יי El, God; * ספאנא Sufanna, a lillie, of the Hebrew שושן Shushan, a lillie, which betokeneth chastitie and good fame, * ויאל Vriel, light or fire of God, of the Hebrew אור vr, ignis, fire, and יי El, God, * ורימ Vrim and * Thummim Thummim, light and perfection, of the Hebrew אור vr, ignis, fire, and in the plurall, ורימים Vrim, fires, as the plurall תמים Thummim, perfectiones, of the singular תם Tom, perfectio, of the verbe תם Tamam, perfecit: This Vrim and Thummim, light and perfection, God commanded to be put in the breast-plate of Iudgement (one of the holy garments appointed for Aaron, to weare vpon his heart when he went in before the Lord) Exod. 28. 30. Ezra 2. 63. and Deut. 33. 8. by Vrim is meant knowledge, and Thummim bolinesse, shewing what vertues are required in Priests: Such like the Bible doth afford plentiful examples to any that are studious to know * the true significations of the Hebrew words from their rootes; which in those that make profession of Diuinitie, or desire true knowledge therein, it is most requirable, necessary, and most helpfull to true vnderstanding and memorie.

The Greeke likewise doth abound with multitudes of Etymologies, hauing so many compounded and recomounded words, whereby we may easily, if we will but looke out the Originall, carrie well in mind diuers words that depend thereon, although I instance in the word night, yet it shall giue some light ἀβύρνη the night, deriued of ἀ priuatiue, which signifieth without, and βύρνη mortalis, as you would say, the time without mortall men stirring abroad, of this word ἀβύρνη the night, ariseth ἀβύρνη to erre, to goe out of the way as in the night, and ἀβύρνη Peccator, a sinner, and ἀβύρνη Peccatum, sinne, also of βύρνη mortalis cometh ἀβύρνη immortalis, quasi ἀβύρνη of a priuatiue, which is not, and βύρνη mortalis also ἀβύρνη, Ambrosia, immortall foode, the foode of Gods, as Nectar their drinke, the letter η put in by the figure Epenthesi, for sound sake, of such Greeke words, and multitude of others, with all the other languages; I referre you, if you like it, to looke into this volume for this purpose published, wherein also sometimes are proper names set downe, in order of Alphabet with the rest, rather to giue notice to those that are ignorant, that Etymologies haue the

the same force with them as in other ordinary words, all which proper names if I could here set downe with their Etymologies, would not bee contained in such another Volume; *The Greeke and his Etymologies, doe to all, that but in a little measure know that Tongue, * Philof: Med: math: orat: Poet. plainly proue it selfe most helpefull to vnderstanding and memories of Philosophers, Physicions, Mathematicians, Orators, Poets, and all louers of humane learning. I had an intent to haue added so many Tables at the end of this Booke; *one I haue done, the Spanish, and * A most copious Spanish Etymological Dictionary now Printed. that most copious, with diuers thousands of words added to my former Spanish Dictionary, besides I haue interpreted this Spanish Dictionary with the Latine and English, and sometimes French and Italian, and also of all, or the most part of Spanish words therein, I haue giuen there their Etymologies, or referred them by figures in this Volume, where you may finde them, and the reasons of them, with the other tenne Languages. For the rest of Tables I say, seeing there are so many excellent copious Dictionaries in Hebrew, Greeke, Latine, Italian, French and other Languages, I referre you to them as you haue vse of them.

* If you desire further to haue the Etymologies of words, or the consent of diuers Languages, here in this Volume so set downe (as heretofore neuer yet published) you may your selfe as you take delight in a Language, or some for you take paines with penne to set downe, and reduce any Language herein contained, to an Alphabet, or Table, for your owne priuate vse, or for others, (as I haue done in the Spanish for the publike) and it may be it will then best please you when you doe it to your owne minde and methode, and by that meanes to draw out an abstract as in other studies men vse to doe. * Any one may out of this drawe a Dictionary Etymologically, of any of the tongues here set downe.

* Touching the obiecting of the Translating Calepine, Megiserus, Decimator, &c. I may answere if I had so done, and turned it to my Countreys vse, I had done a laborious worke, but it is farre otherwise, for they giue the Etymologies but onely of the Latine, and sometime of the Greeke, but I performe it in all the eleuen, as also lay the Languages which are of one sound (for memories sake) together, which none of them, nor others yet euer haue done. And whereas some conceit as themselves haue told me, led by the opinion of some learned, That if I had placed the Latine first, it would haue had more grace and liking. I say againe as a little aboue, that any one himselfe, or others for him, may reduce all the Latine words, or other Languages in this Dictionary, to an Alphabet or Table, with ioyning what Language together he likes, and so best please himselfe, when hee doth it, to his owne method and minde. * Calepine objected.

* My purpose in placing the English first, before other Tongues, is for the vse chiefly of our owne Nation, or others that vnderstand the English Tongue, to finde out any Word by order of Alphabet they call or looke for, and so by that to haue a fit French, Italian, Spanish word, to speake or write, (in which Calepine is very faultie) besides to haue the Etymologies of them as of all the rest, (the better euer to hold them in their memorie) which none other yet euer hath performed. * Why the English first.

* The Law-Termes likewise of this land, with the descriptions of Offices, Officers and Magistrates, and Titles of dignities, are by order of Alphabet at large in this volume set downe, with this marke , which may giue delightfull reading to the Master, and Clerkes of any office, or others that seeke to vnderstand the reason or knowledge of them. * Law-Terms of this Land, and descriptions of Offices.

* What vse Merchants may make of this Booke, especially those that are in person to traficke in forreine Countreys and Tongues, I need not here set downe, when it approoues it selfe so plaine to euery mans vnderstanding, that will vse the same, that by the English Alphabet they may finde any of these Languages to speake or to write, and the Etymologies for memorie of them. And seeing I haue made so dangerous a voyage, and aduenture, in so many tempests in an Ocean of trauailes, troubles, and hard sufferings, and wants, the greater part of this twenty yeeres, to bring this tossed Barke vn wreckt, which here vn lades, and layes in order to your viewes the Commodities that are in the same. I shall be right glad and comforted that Merchants (that for aduentures sake merite money) might make great vse with pleasure of my paynes (being such an aduenturer as I am) and much the rather for that in my yonger time, aboue thirty yeeres since, by meanes of some worthy Merchants (which here and elsewhere with due respect and thankfulness I euer shall acknowledge.) I was first furnished according to my then great desires, to trauell into forreine Countreys, and get the knowledge of some of the Tongues (which I haue professed) and at their seruices here present, and truely affirme, that not onely my furnishing forth, my supplie when I wanted abroad, and my transporting from one Countrey to another, as also my last comming home (when I had beene taken prisoner) was still by Merchants. Thus much I thought in generall termes as a Testimonie of the due thankfulness, and my euer respect I owe towards them therefore: The particulars I omit for other places and times. * For the vse of Merchants.

And

LECTOR I.

* The Authors acknowledgement.

* And at this time, to publish to the world, of the helpes that of late I haue had in England, of Honourable, and other worthy persons, some by gifts, others by lending great summes to lift vp this worke to the eye of the World for the generall good, lying languishing for want of Printing, which now being done so much by their good meanes, I doe here to the world first professe my hearty thankfulnessse to the Almighty God, that hath of his goodnesse thus farre enabled my weake bodie and meanes, in so great a worke, and next, due remembrance vnto men, that by their meanes, it is thus published in Print: And if the Bookes now Printed, may be at a reasonable rate sould and vented, I may be encouraged, and others who are ingaged about this Worke, in great summes, may be the sooner satisfied and payed. And if any bee profited or pleased hereby, if they will next vnder God, acknowledge with me thankfulnessse vnto those, that haue been great meanes to bring it to this passe, I shall bee the more comforted, that they doe Sympathize with mee, in my true affection, and due respect towards them therefore.

And whereas I may incurre offence, or suspicion of flattery, to set downe the names of some worthy persons in this Kingdome, who haue much fauoured and furthered this Worke, and without whom I could finde no other meanes at that time, to bring it to this passe: For that their worths are such, that euery day as occasion is offered (being in so great places) they may, and doe performe greater matters in the Common-wealth: For these and some other respects, I doe forbear the here naming of them.

And whereas some sixe yeeres since, when I had done this Volume Etymologicall of eleuen Languages as copious as I could for the Presse, being then in Oxford, and hauing my Copie, and company of certaine Strangers and Schollers at mine owne charge about the Worke there, I made suit vnto the Vniuersitie to haue the Testimony of my paines, and expence, and their approbation of this Worke, which vnder the Seale of the Vniuersitie, with the hands of the Right Worshipfull M^r. Vicechancellor, and the rest of the heads of houses there, they then freely gaue mee (to my first comfort, after my so long and chargeable labours herein:) And for that then I found, I had spent all my substance thereupon, and gotten greatly into debt thereby, I laboured for His Maiesties Letters Patents, which by the meanes of certaine Right honourable Personages, by shewing some part of the Worke, I obtained his Maiesties gracious Graunt herein. For which, and other furtherances for setting this Worke forward, I remaine to their Honours much obliged and bound: which Letters Patents, with my Copie, I tendred to the Company of Stationers to be sould, who by reason of my great debts to be paid thereby, refused the same. Whereby I was forced to proiect how I might get it Printed, and thought, if it might be hearkened vnto, that Multorum manibus grande leuetur opus. I first preferred Petition to the Honourable and Right Worshipfull Benchers and Gentlemen, of the honourable Societies of Graies Inne, and Lincolnes Inne, by whose goodnesse and Contributions it was first set on Printing: After them followed diuers Honorable and Right Worshipfull Personages, Bishops and others, which I forbear to name, for former respects, and returne to the first setters in Print of this Worke, the honourable Societies of the Innes of Court, with my proceedings by Petition to the honourable Societie of the Inner Temple, with like successe, and here likewise publish my due respect and thankfulnessse to them, for furthering this worke, as the former Innes of Court before had done. And whereas before I came to that Inne of Court, and since it hath beene said to me, that I should neuer be able to raise such summes to the Printing of so great a Worke, but that which they then did, they thought well of in respect of my endeauiours, and therefore did the lesse, because they had no hope, that euer it should be brought to passe (as a thing indeede in these times very hard for that Haud facile emergunt quorum virtutibus obstat res angusta domi) yet now by Gods blessing, and their goodnesse to set it first on, I haue by that meanes wrought my selfe in credite againe to borrow great summes thereupon, to make an end thereof, to present it to your viewes as you see, (though it hath cost me the hazard of my life therefore.) And I doe here protest, that I neuer had intent to trouble any man with Contribution, if the Worke and my selfe had not beene in these desperate termes; wherefore as soone as I could, I freed the Worke and my selfe from that imputation, and little respect (of a thing neuer so good in such needie courses.) Yet if a man duely consider, or rather be driuen to prooue, they shall finde, that Necessitie makes men Artists, that neuer meant to be skilled, and Cowards to fight, that durst not otherwise draw weapon, and if honour or profite be also proposed, greater spurres cannot be set to a man that hath spirit euen to performe actions that are seeming beyond his power.

I had a minde to haue made suit in like manner to the Middle-Temple, as to the other Innes of Court, but as soone as I could get credite, to borrow money to accomplish the Worke,

LECTOR I.

Worke, I did forbear them, and all others in that kinde; yet one I must acknowledge of that house, whose purse hath payd to the setting forward of this, as of diuers other good workes (if I be silent, dayly his good deeds doe speake the same) who wel knowes a great part of my expence, and paines hereabouts, and also at diuers times, like an honourable Gentleman hath done me about this Worke, sundry former fauours.

And that you may now see I meant not to prosecute these courses of Contribution, when that I could borrow elsewhere, I will here set downe that a Gentleman of worth and vnderstanding, Sir Iohn Lawrence Knight, (who not only was one of the first and most bountifullest Benefactors to raise this Worke vp, but also seeing it sticke for want of summes to set it forward, lending and laying downe further out of his purse, a great summe, and ioyning with the Right Worshipfull Mr. Doctor Aileworth of Great Milton, Mr. Paul Peart; and Mr. Henry Brigges, they did at their charge, Print off the rest, and greatest part of the maine Booke of eleuen Languages here done; and a Right Worshipfull and most learned Gentleman, Sir Henry Spelman Knight, and a worthy Citizen Master Richard Booth, and againe the aboue-named Mr. Henry Brigges; (all which had formerly likewise furthered the first worke) did lend and lay downe so much money more, to the Compiling and Printing of this new Spanish Dictionary, in Spanish, Latine and English, and sometimes other Languages, with some certaine thousands of words, and their Etymologies, added to my former Spanish Diccionario, to these Gentlemen, for their helpes and moneys, I do here publish my thankfulness to them therefore, and vnto one Mr. Robert Trefwell Esquire, Surueyor of His Maiesties Woods, and Mr. William Caldwell Esquire, both which in the former, and later, haue engaged themselues in good summes for the sooner and better bringing them to passe. I do likewise heere acknowledge the name, and continued good turnes and fauours to set this Worke forward, of Mr. Thomas Warricke Esquire, and Mr. Iohn Porie, a little before he went to trauell out of England. And whereas I made an end of the Dictionary Etymologicall of eleuen Languages in Oxford, and began and made an end of the Spanish in Cambridge; and much the sooner by the fauourable goodnesse of the Right Worshipfull Vicechancellours and the rest of the heads of houses of both Vniuersities, to animate some Schollers to set to their helping hands, for which their forwardnesse to set forth this Worke, I doe heere publish my humble thankfulnesse to them all, and especially to some of them, to whom I remaine more particularly bound, whose names I here forbear, for priuate respects. And I doe heartily wish, that all those that are pleased hereby, might acknowledge with mee thankfulnesse to those, by whose good meanes it is thus brought to passe, and would likewise wish (though not likely to obtaine) Readers, without gaule or bitterness, ready to excuse, slow to condemne, full of charitable spirit, void of their owne vaines and opinions: and I doe promise what faults I haue herein committed, being thereof admonished, I will doe my best to make amends, for as yet I cannot winne out time, to reade ouer the Worke, to finde out the Errata: And as for the contenting of some conceited, that make sleight account of making of a Dictionary, I strue not, but appeale to those that haue laboured in this kind, who best by their owne triall, can iudge hereof; and for others

I esteeme not their accompt, till they haue made like triall, yet doe in all things submit my selfe, and doings, to the censure of the wiser sort, discrete and learned. If this Epistle or the former seeme to thee too tedious, vnderstand that I meant not to set a little Gate to so great a Building, and so I leaue this Worke, and my selfe, hard to please few, harder to please many, impossible to please all.

IOHN MINSHEU.

The true Copy of the hands, with the Seale of the Vniuersitie of Oxford, in confirmation and approbation of this Worke.

WHEREAS some Eleuen yeeres since, Mr. IOHN MINSHEV, Professor of Languages in LONDON, to his great paynes and cost, and his due praise and commendation, as to the publike good, Published in Print the Spanish Dictionary Spanish and English; and à conuerso, English and Spanish, with a Spanish Grammar, and seuen Spanish Dialogues, adioyning to the same; and then began a Dictionary in five Languages, which euer since, to his excessiue charge, labour and paynes (hauing no other Liuing for Himselfe, Wife, and Children, but his Teaching of Languages) he hath increased to the number of Eleuen Languages; viz. English, British or Welsh, Low Dutch (and sometimes Saxon) High Dutch, French, Italian, Spanish, Portugall, Latin, Greeke, and Hebrew, sometime the Chaldye and Arabick Tongues, with the Etymologies and Reasons of all Wordes in all these Languages, as much as many Scholers (some English-men, some Welsh, some high Dutch-men, low Dutch, French, some Italians, &c. all learned in the Tongues) for diuers yeeres could find out, by reading the best Authors in all these Languages, the like whereof as yet neuer Published in Print, and all at his great charges and expences, towards the valew of a thousand Markes or thereabouts, as by the number of yeeres, and persons imployed in this Worke, and by his Papers written thereof may be coniectured.

And hauing now finished and ended the Alphabet, the foure and twentie Letters, in all these Languages, as he thinketh, and by the iudgement of the Learned seemeth, will be a sufficient ample Dictionary Etymologicall: For the compleating, examining, reuiuing, and correcting whereof; he came downe from LONDON, with his Company of Strangers and Scholers to this our Vniuersitie of OXFORD; and to his, ioyned other Strangers and Scholers, for the more perfect reuiue and ouer-sight, for the space of these foure moneths amongst vs, to his farther great expences, and appointed euery one in his owne Language (and that he had most skill in) to runne ouer, that it now might goe the more correct to the Presse: the particulars of some Wordes, drawne out of the Mayne (which remayneth here as yet in OXFORD amongst vs) he carryeth with him, to shew to whom shall be desirous of the same, as also this our TESTIMONIAL of Him, as the worth of the worke deserues; That it is in our Opinions, A rare and excellent worke in this kinde, pleasant and profitable, and now correct in all these Tongues, and very Worthie to be Printed and Published throughout Christendome, for the Benefit and helpe of Learning in all these Tongues, for the Credit of our Nation, and the Speciall aduancement of our English Tongue amongst other Nations. And that it were great pittie, that he (after his excessiue charges; labour, and so long time spent thereupon) should be any way preiudiced, and not fauoured & furthered by men of Worth, as He, for his great Industrie, paynes, and expences, for the aduancement of Learning in the Tongues, most worthily deserues. Thus much we thought good (in testimonie of the Truth) in Christian dutie, to set our Hands and Seale of our Vniuersitie, the two and twentieth of Nouember, one thousand sixe hundred and ten.

and confirmation of this Worke.*

WE whose names are vnder written (according to our Iudgements, vpon sight) doe testifie, that a Dictionary Etymologicall of Eleuen Languages (viz.) 1 English, 2 British, or Welsh, 3 High Dutch, 4 Low Dutch, 5 French, 6 Italian, 7 Spanish, 8 Portugall, 9 Latine, 10 Greeke, and 11 Hebrue, with the Etymologies, that is, the Reasons and Derinations of all wordes in all these Eleuen Languages. Which (M. IOHN MINSHEV, Professor of Languages in London, and Maker of the Spanish Dictionary, now extant vnder his Name, at his excessiue Charges, by maintayning many Scholers, and naturall Strangers, all Learned in the Tongues for diuers yeeres, besides his owne trauaile, and paynes therein) hath Bestowed his time and whole Stock vpon, to the value of a thousand Markes, or thereabouts, Is a rare and worthy Worke, as Neuer yet any the like published in Print, as also a Methode most helpfull to Memory, making a man with much Ease and Facility to Remember 4, 5, or more Languages together, differing from all Dictionaries heretofore set forth, that vnder the Name, the Nature, propertie, qualitie, matter, forme, fashion or end of things are directly described, as himselfe by conference with the Learned, and shewing the worke to whomsoever, shall plainly demonstrate and proue.

All which, the said IOHN MINSHEV with his great Industrie, paynes, and exceeding expences, for the Aduancement of Learning, in the Tongues, hath now brought to passe. For Testimonie of the Truth hereof, we haue set to our hands in Confirmation of the worke, most Worthie to be Faouored, and furthered by All men of Worth, as it most duely deserues, 8. of December, 1610.

- 627-1 * to Attache, à G. Attacher, i. Ang. to attache, racke, or fasten vnto. Lat. Affigere, Alligare, Nectere. In our Common Law, it signifieth to take hold, or apprehend by commandment of Writ, and differeth from an Arrest, or Capias, which lieth on the body, and an Attachement vpon body, and sometime on goods. Besides, M. Lamberd in his Eirenarchie, or office of Iustice of Peace, lib. 1. cap. 16. maketh this difference betweene an Arrest and an Attachement, that an Arrest proceedeth out of lower Courts by precept, and an Attachement out of higher Courts by precept or Writ. Also betwixt an Attachement and a Distresse is there difference, because a Distresse toucheth not the body, but goods and lands, and an Attachement body and goods, but not land, as a Distresse doth. More may you reade in Kitchin, Bracton, Britton, &c. out of whom and others M.D. Corvell hath learnedly collected for his interpretation of it is and the rest of the Law termes: whose labour hath saved me much labour in the search of those termes touching the Law. For Attainder is a conviction of any person, of a crime, or fault, whereof hee was not convicted before: As if a man have committed Felony, or Treason, &c. and is thereof indicted, arraigned, found guilty, and hath iudgement, then he is said to have an Attainder sued vpon him, or he is attained, i. attinctus. - 629 * Attaint, or attainted. à G. Attaindre, à Lat: Attingere, (ab ad & tangere, to touch, to reach vnto, or overtake) because hee that is attained, is as it were atched, overtaken, or plainly deprehended, as in French they say, Attaint et vaincu, i. attains and convicted: or of the French Teindre, i. Lat: Tingere, to staine, to discolour. Pndè Gal: Teint, Lat: Tinctus, stained, as we say he is Attainted or Tainted of Treason, &c. i. stained. A man is attainted two waies: by Appearance, or by Proces. ¶ Stanf: Pl. cor: fo: 44. Attaint by Appearance, is by Confession, Battle, or Verdict. Idem, fo: 122.
- By Confession, as being asked, guilty or not guilty, answereth guilty, neuer putting himselfe vpon the verdict of the Iurie. By Battle, when the partie appealed by another, and chusing to trie the truth by Combat, rather then by Iurie, is vanquished. By Verdict, when the Prisoner at the Barre, answering to the Indictment not guilty, and yet is found by the verdict guilty. Idem, fo. 108. & 192. Attaint also is a Writ, and lieth where a false verdict is given by 12. men, and iudgement given thereon. The partie against whom they haue passed, may haue a Writ of Attaint against the 12. men, as parcial, and to haue given sentence contrarie to the evidence shewed vnto them. And where as before, vpon the first Enquest, commonly they all be Tenemen, now vpon this Attaint, must goe 24. Gentlemen, dwelling within the Shire. The matter is pleaded againe before the same Iudges: but there must in the Attaint no more evidence be brought in, but only that which was brought in, and alleged before the first Enquest. If this second Enquest doe finde that the first haue gone parcially, and against the evidence brought in before them, the first Enquest is called Attainted, and accounted as perjured and infamed, and shall forfeit to the King their Lands and Tenements, &c. But if the 24. doe adiuage as the first, the Plaintiffe that brought that Attaint, shall be imprisoned, and ransomed at the Kings will. 23. H. 8. c. 3. - 752 a Baile (a terme in our Common Law) properly for the freeing, or setting at libertie, of one arrested, or imprisoned, upon Action, either Civil or Criminal, under suretie taken for his Appearance, at a day and place certainly assigned. Bracton: lib. 3. Tract: 2. cap. 8. num. 8. 9. and cometh of the French word Bailler, i. tradere, to deliuer vp, because he is then deliuered into the hands of them that binde themselves for his forth-coming. M. Manwood in his first part of Forest Lawes, Pag. 167. maketh a great difference between betwixt Baile and Mainprife. For (faith hee) hee that is mainprifed, is alwaies said to be at large, and goe at his owne libertie, out of ward, after hee is let to mainprife, untill the day of his appearance. But it is otherwise where a man is let to Baile, by 4. or 2. men, or by the L. Chiefe Iustice in Eyre of the Forest untill a certaine day. For he is alwaies accounted by the Law, to bee in their ward and custodie for the time they undertooke for him. And they may, if they will, keepe him in ward or prison, all that time, so that hee that is so bailed, shall not be said, by the Law, to bee at large, or at his owne libertie. Or Baile may be said of the suretie which is baillé, i. given or delivered up as a pledge to answer. So is the suretie said to be Baile for another man, Baillé, i. given or delivered up, that if the Principall appeare not at the day appointed, the Baile is to answer the Action or matter. Baile is called in Latine Manucapcio. Vide Mainprife.

753 to Baile, or become suretie for one, à Gal: bail, i. traditio, i. a delivering. Vi. Baile. Nam qui aliquem vadatur, illum q. in suam potestatem tradit, aut seipsum in alterius. It commeth from the French word Bail, which signifieth a delivrie: because whosoever baileth any man, delivereth him out, or himselfe into the power of another, by binding himselfe to answer if the other faile. B. Ter-borghen, à borghen, i. fidei-jussor, sponzor, vas, præs, a suretie. Borghen bishuën. T. Terburghen, à bürge, i. vas, sponzor, a suretie. G. Bailler Caution, Cautionner, (a caution, i. vas, præs, a suretie.) répondre, ou estre pleige, et caution, pour un autre. I. Obligat per respondere per un altro. H. Dar caution A-bonâr. Salir fiador por otro. P. Sair fiador por outro. L. Vadari (a vas, radis) Vadimonium dare (est promittere se presturum quod aliter, pro quo se interponit, tenebatur.) Gr. ἀπαδεύειν τὸν δάνειον, i. suscipere item, fili: pro altero, i. to undertake another mans controuersie. Br. i. tethino. Vi. Suretie.

b. a Baile or suretie, à G. Bailler viz. la promesse ou obligation, à Gr: βάλλω. Vi. Suretie.

754 Baillement (a terme in Law) is a delivrie of things, whether it bee of writings, goods, or stuffe, à Gal: Baillement, i. idem, a delivering or giuing.

755 a Baillie, Baillie or Bailie. G. Bailli, Baillif. Flan: Hal: Zelan: Baellu, Baellu, Baillu, Drossaet, Drossaert, I. Baïlo. H. Baillio, Alguzil, apud Gallos, with the Frenchmen, Bailli ou Baillif. Est Lat: Dicoctes. Gr. διοικω, i. administrator, vel negotijs administrandis prefectus, à διοικω, i. administro, à διο and διο, i. domus, ut sit q. qui administrat seu ordinat domum, sed translato ad multa alia officia extenditur. Nomarcha, vocatur q. prefectura imperium obiens, à νέμω, i. lex, à νέμω, i. distribuo, à νέμω, i. dux, prefectus. Prefectus Provinciae, vulgo Bailliu, a Gouvernor, a Maior, a Baillie, a Magistrate appointed within a Province or Precinct, to execute Justice, as a Justice of Peace, to maintain the Peace, and preserve the people from wrong, oppression, and vexation. He hath authoritie and power to enquire and take notice of Felonies, Treasons, Murders, Popular Assemblies, Faires, Markets, Freedomes, or other Privileges usurped, or unjustly stood on. He makes Proclamation in his owne name, and appoints the Ordinarie Justices in his Province. At Assises hee is Principall Iudge, yet but a Deputie to the King, or some Lord, whereof every one may have a Baillie within his territorie and Iurisdiction, so that there be Baillies royal, Baillies Royall, which in ancient times were but a few, but now are many in number, Baillies de Provinces, or Grands Baillifs, Baillies of Provinces, which are of Dukes, Marqueses, and Earles, who besides other prerogatives, have the deciding of great and privileged cases, to make difference from other Baillies of other places. For as there be 16. Parlements in France, q. Lupan: de Magistrat: Francorum lib: 2. cap. Parlamentum, which be high Courts, whence lieth no appeal, within the Precincts of which, there be severall Provinces, unto which within themselves, Justice is ministered by certaine Officers called Baillifs, as in England the chiefe Magistrates of diuers Townes Corporate bee called Baillies, who have the same authoritie in their Iurisdiction as the Baillies in France. And as our Realme of England is divided into Counties, or Shires, so is every Countie divided into Hundreds, within the which, in ancient times, the Kings Subiects had Justice ministered unto them by the severall Officers of every Hundred, which were called Baillies. And a Baillie, as Bracton writeth, lib. 3. Traet. 2. cap. 34. num. 5. might hold Plea of Appoele and Approvers. But since that time, these Hundred Courts (certaine Franchises excepted) are by Statute An. 14. Ed. 3. Stat. 1. ca. 9. brought into Countie Courts. In which in former time, Justice hath bene ministered to the Inhabitants of each Countie, by the Vicount, which we call Shyreue, the one name descending from the Normans, the other from the Saxons, as Reeue of the Shyre, which word Reeue in the Saxon signifieth also a Baillie. Whereby it is probable that in ancient time the Baillies did administer Justice to the Inhabitants of the whole Countie, because the Countie is called many times Bailliu, i. a Bailliwike, as Kitch: Returi Breu: fo: 258. Non est inuentus in Bailliu, &c. But our word Baillie, G. Baillif, cometh of the French word Baillie, i. Puissance, Mandement, Authorite, Ang: Power, Gouvernement, Seigneurie, rule over, Command. as, Iene veux estre en ta Baillie. q. Bevin: I will not be vnder thy Seigneurie or government. And Lettres de Baillie (according to the stile of Normandie) are Lettres or Writs authorising him to whom they are directed unto, to take into his possession the goods or possessions of another. Which may come of Baillér, i. to giue or grant, viz. Authoritie from the King, &c. And in some parts of France, as in Languedoc, they call Baile, as in Italian Balia, i. a woman Nurse, by the same reason. For as the Baillie hath his power given him, and hath his government in his Bailliwike, i. his Bailliwike, so hath a Nurse over her nurse child. In England there be Baillies errants, and Baillies of Franchises, which in our Law or vulgar Latine are called (Bailliu itinerantes) i. going hither and thither in the Countie to serve Writs, and summon the Countie Sessions, Assises, and such like, &c. which are made and appointed by the Shireue. (Bailliu Franchisatum aut Libertatum) are those that bee appointed by every Lord within his libertie, to doe such Offices within his Precincts, as the Baillie errant doth at large within the Countie. There bee also Baillies of the Forest. q. Manwood part. 1. pag. 113. With vs in England there bee Baillies of Husbandrie, belonging to a Mannor, or to private men of much lands and substance, who seeme to be so called for the reason aboue written, for that they dispose of the vnder seruants, every man to his labour and task, checke them for misdoing their businesse, gather the profits of their Lord and Master, and deliver up an account. This also among the Saxons was called a Reeue, for the word Baillie came in with the Normans, and Rebuffus in constitut: regias de senten: executionis, art. 7. glof: 1. writeth, that it cometh from the

It is used in our common law, for an impediment that hindereth a man to be a Clerke, and so for a prisoner to lose the benefit of his Clergie, by reason he hath bene twice married. For the Canonists hold that he that hath bene twice married, may not be a Clerke, and they ground it upon these words of S. Paul. 1. Timothie, the first Epistle, chap. 3. vers. 2. Oportet ergo Episcopum irreprehensibilem esse, & vnius uxoris virum. q. D. Covell, deposed at the Councell of Lions, upon some dislike of second marriages, as the Author of the new Termes of Law saith, by which also they hold him that hath married a widow, and by interpretation take to have bene twice married. And both these they doe not only exclude from holy orders, but also denie them all privileges of Clergie. q. D. Covell. But at this day by force of the Act made in Anno 1. Ed. 6. cap. 12. and to that may be added the Statute Anno 10. Eliz. cap. 7. which for the love of learning alloweth all men that can reade, as Clerkes, to have the benefit of their Clergie, in case of Felonie. If you be desirous to see what reasons they haue against second marriages, you may reade, among others, Francis Petrarch, de remedio vtriusque fortune, lib. 1. Dialog: 76. intituled, The second Marriage. Which Booke is truly translated, and with good grace, out of Latine into English; and most fitly called, Physicke against fortune, by Master Thomas Twyne Doctor of Physicke, whose name lets not my pen passe, without mention of his sonne a gentleman of worth, M. Brian Twyne, Bachelor of Divinitie, Fellow of Corpus Christi College in Oxford, who likewise is learned in the Mathematickes and Antiquities, and for the good of others, in Latine hath compiled, and gathered together a Booke intituled Antiquitatis Academice Oxoniensis Apologia. For which learned worke, as his diligent search therein, no doubt the Universitie, as all men desirous of Antiquities, doe give him his due praise and shanks therefore: which in another place I may more fitly take occasion to speake thereof, and his name. And yet in this place thus much of him, out of my experience, (which in and out of England I haue dearely bought with the expence of diuers thousand pounds) I finde him so forward to further any worke that shall remaine to posteritie and the publike good, that neither his owne profit or private respect shall hinder him from helping the same.

Cancellarius, à cancellando nomen obtinuit, quod ejus sit cancellare, i. transversa linea circumfiscere vel conscribere, & præferit aliquod Rescriptum, Edictum, Decretum, contra Principem aut ius reipub: imperat. & Lupan: Because it is his part to cancell if he finde any Act, Matter, or Decree obtained, which may any way prejudice his Prince or the Common Wealth. & Lupan: which cancelling is made with lines drawn a crosse like a lertice, which in Latine is called Cancelli. And Cancelli in Latine is all one with κρύκλιδες in Greeke, pronounced Kinklides, both which in our English tongue signifie Lattices, that is a thing made of wood or iron barres laid crosse waies, one over another, so that one may well see thorow them, in and out: And it is to be thought, that Iudgement seates in old time, were compassed in with these barres being found very fit and necessary to defend the Iudges and other officers from the presse of the multitude, and yet neuer the more, to hinder any mans view, that had a desire, or a Cause, to observe what was done. As Chancels were so divided from the body of the Church, and thereupon called Chancels. Gr: ἀρχιγραμματεὺς, ἀρχιγρῆς, i. princeps & γραμματεὺς, i. scriba: q. princeps scribarum.

- b* Chancelour in other Kingdomes, as also in ours, is a Title given to him, that is the chiefe man, for matter of Justice, (in Civill causes especially) next unto the Prince. For whereas all other Iustices in our Common-wealth are tied to the Law, and may not swerve from it in Iudgement. The Chancelour hath in this a more absolute power, to moderate, and temperate the written Law, ordering all things juxta æquum & Bonum, and therefore Stawford Prærog. cap. 20. fol. 65. saith that the Chancelour hath two powers, one Extraordinary, the other Ordinary, meaning that though by his ordinary power in some cases, he must observe the forme of proceeding as other ordinary Iudges, yet that in his extraordinary power hee is not limited by the written Law, but by Conscience, and equity, according to the circumstances of the Matters in question. & Pollid: Virg. lib. 9. Hist. Ang: hath these words of William the Conquerour. Institutum item scribarum Collegium, qui diplomata scriberent, & ejus Collegij Magistrum vocabat Cancellarium, qui paulatim supremus factus est Magistratus, qualis hodie habetur. Vi. & Fleta: lib. 2. cap. 13. This high Officer seemeth to be derived from France to us, as many other Officers and Offices are: For of this thus writeth Boerius, Tractat: de Autoritate magni Concilij num. 8. Consistorio Franciæ post Principem, Dominus Franciæ Cancellarius, cui velut excelsum Iudicij tribunal hoc in regno (sub principe tamen nostro) moderanti, sigillum authenticum (sine quo sigillo, publicis & patentibus Regij literis, nulla fides adhibetur) & liberam administrationem habenti, omnes & singuli Regij Iustitiales, quocunque nomine nuncupentur, ac quavis Autoritate fungantur, eo inferiores sunt. Hee that beareth this Magistracy and high Office is called the Lord Chancellor of England, & Anno 7. R. 2. cap. 14. and by the Statute Anno 5. Eliz: cap. 18. the Lord Chancellor and Keeper of the Great Seale of England have all one power, yet differ in this, that the Lord Keeper is but at the pleasure of the Prince, the other alwaies, during life. In the daies, and Reigne, of which renowned QUEENE and peccetlese Prince, of famous memory, and memorable fame, thorowout all Kingdomes; was called to this Office and high Dignity, the highly deserving, and learned in the Lawes of this Land, THOMAS LORD ELLESMERE, then to that rare QUEENE Lord Keeper. And now Lord Chancellor of England to the mighty Monarch King JAMES the first, Emperour and King of Great BRITAIN; unto which great Officer and Subjects Picture and Person, this Elogie is, and that most fitly, adioyned and applied.

1980 Cinque ports. G. Cinque ports. I. Cinque ports. H. Cinco-puertos. T. Fünf ports, oder hafens. B. Five Havens. L. Quinque portus. Gr. πέντε λιμνες, πέντε. Ang. Five Ports or Havens, be those special Haven townes which lie toward France, in the East part of England, which in respect of their situation, anciently required a more vigilant care than other Havens, being in greater danger of invasion by our enemies, by reason that the Sea is narrower there than in other places. M^r. Camden in his Britannia, pag. 230. saith, that the Romans, after they had settled themselves and their Empire here in England, appointed a Magistrate or Governor over those East parts, whom they termed Comitem littoris Saxonic, per Britanniam, having another that did beare the same title, on the opposite part of the Sea, whose office was to strengthen the Sea-coasts with munition, against the outrages and robberies of the Barbarians: but more especially (as my Author saith) against the invasion of the Saxons, which at that time did much waste and spoile the Countrey in those parts: as of latter yeeres, viz. in the latter time of Queene Elizabeth, the Dunkers of the Low Countreies did many times endamage the Countrey adjoining to the Sea side very much, by running on shore with their Longboats in the night, and killing yea and often stealing away much cattell from about Folkestone, Hyde, and Dymchurch, and other places on the Sea-coasts. Of which places and Ports to this day is there an speciall Governour or Keeper, called by his Office, Lord Warden of the Cinque-ports, having the authoritie, and all that jurisdiction that the Lord Admirall of England hath in places not exempt, and sending out Writs in his owne name. And further I finde on record in the Rolles, that Henry the Seventh respecting the dignitie of this Office, thought it not unworthie the person of a Prince, but bestowed it upon his second sonne Henry the eighth, who succeeded him in name and Kingdome. The words of the Record are these expressly, Henr. 7. Rex Anglia, &c. quinto die Aprilis, Anno regni sui octavo, secundo-genito filio suo Henrico, dedit officium Conitabular: Castri Dover, ac custodiam quinq; Portuum. Which Ports at this day are known by the names of Hastings, Dover, Hith, Rumney, Sandwiche. The inhabitants of these Ports, and of their limmes or members, enjoy divers and great privileges above the rest of the Commons of that Countrey. They pay no subsidies: besides, suits at Law are commenced and answered within their owne Townes and liberties: their Mayors have the credit of carrying the Canopie over the King or Queene at their coronation. And for their greater dignitie, they are placed then at a Table on the right hand of the King. Crompton in his Jurisdiction fol: 28. nam: the Cinque ports to be seven, adding Rye and Winchelsey to the five before recited. To which that old verse yields further testimonie: Dover, Sandwiche, Rye, Rumney, Frimareventus. But neither that of Crompton, nor this more ancient authoritie in verse, are to be received. For Rye and Winchelsea are indeed limmes, or members, belonging to the Port of Hastings, as likewise Lid and old Rumney are limmes of the Port of new Rumney, and not distinct Ports by themselves. Quere Statutum Henr. 8. anno 32. cap: 48. in hunc finem. M. Camden, the most learned Antiquarie of our time, pag. 230. is of opinion, that this office of a Warden had his first originall amongst vs, after the incursion and invasion of the Romans, in imitation of the Romane policie, because they had ordained the like Officers likewise upon the other side of the Sea; and more in number. In to this Office of headfull and high trust, anno primo IACOBI Anglia, was called and chosen the anciently high borne, learned, and true noble Lord HENRY Earle of Northampton, Lord Priue Seale, and Priue Counsellour of Estate unto his Maiestie. Civitas, est cinium multitudo vnum in locum congregata, quæ eodem iure vivit, ut q. Cicero de Somn: Scip: his verbis scribit: Nihil enim est illi principi Deo, qui omnem hunc mundum regit, quod quidem in terris fiat acceptius, quam in cælis, cæsusque hominum iure sociati, quæ Civitates appellantur. Idem pro Sestio: Tota conuenticula hominum, quæ postea civitates nominatae sunt. Civitas & vrbis in hoc differunt, quod incole dicuntur civitas, vrbis vero completior adificia. q. Cic: 4. Acad: A Citie is properly a compaignie of Citizens assembled together in one place, living vnder one and the same Law. q. Cic: or a walled or incorporated towne, being the Seat and Sea of a Bishop, and having a Cathedrall Church within it. & q. Lucas de Penna, lege unica, titulu, de Metropoli: q. Beryto Tit: 2. lib. 10. Cod: hath these words: Idem locus vrbis, Civitas, & Oppidum appellatur. Civitas enim dicitur quatenus cum Iustitia & magistratu ordine gubernatur: Oppidum, quatenus est ibi copia incolarum: Vrbis, quatenus muris debito more cingitur. Propriè autem dicitur Civitas quæ habet Episcopum: si Episcopo caret, dicitur Vrbis. w. de verbis signifi: l. Pupillus. §. Oppidum, &c. Yet M^r. Crompton in his Iurisdictionis, where he reckoneth up the Cities, leaveth out Elye, though it have a Bishop and a Cathedrall Church, and putteth in Westminster, though it have no Bishop. And Anno 35. Elizab: cap: 6. Westminster is called a Citie. Anno 27. eiusdem cap: 5. of the Statute not printed, it is alternatiuely, that is by course, sometime called a Citie, sometime a Borow. And it appeareth by the Statute 35. H.8. cap: 10. that then there was a Bishop of Westminster. Civitas accordeth to Aristotle lib: 3. Politic: cap: 1. is thus defined, to bee a certaine and uniforme government of the Inhabitantes. And Cæsar Civitatem vocat populum eodem iure viventem, but this is the generall definition of a Common-wealth. For over and beside that which is above said, Cassianus in consuetudine Burg: par: 5. saith, that France hath within the Territories of it 104. Cities, and giveth a reason of this his saying, because there be so many seats of Archbishops and Bishops.

R. 2. ca: 4. whose duties is to take charge of the Kings measures, and to keepe the Standards of them (that is) the Examples or Patternes of all the Measures that ought to be throw the Land: as of Elnes, Elles, Yards, Lagens, as Quarts, Pottles, Gallons, &c. of Weights, Bushels, and such like, and to see that all measures in euery place be answerable to the said Standard or Pattern. Fleta lib: 2. ca: 8. g. 10. 11. 12. of which Office, as also of our diuersitie of weights and measures, you may there finde a Treatise with the reading. Britton also in his 30. Chapter setteth in the Kings person to this effect: Wee will that none haue measures in the Realme but Wee our selues, but that euery man take his measure and weights from our Standards: And so goeth on with a Tractate of this matter, that well sheweth the ancient Law and practise in this point. Touching this Officers duty, you haue also a good Statute Anno 13. R. 2. ca: 4.

l Clarke of the Kings Siluer, Clericus Argentii Regis, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, vnto whom euery fine is brought, after it hath bene with the Custos Breuium, and by whom the effect of the Writ of Cosenant is entered into a paper Booke: and according to that note, all the Fines of that Terme are also recorded in the Rolles of the Court. And his entrie is in this forme: He putteth the shire over the margin, and then saith, B. C. dat Domino Regi dimidiam merkam (or more according to the value) pro licentia concordandi D. cum D. E. pro talibus terris, in tali villa, & habet Chirographum per pacem admissum, &c.

m Clarke of the Peace, Cléricus Pacis, is an Officer belonging to the Sessions of the peace. His duties in the Sessions to read the Indictments, to enroll the Acts, and draw the processe, to record the Proclamations of rates for seruants wages, to enroll the discharge of Apprentices, to keepe the Contrapaine of the Indenture of Armour, to keepe the Register Booke of Licences given to Badgers and Laders of corne, and of those that are licensed to shoot in guns, and to certifie in to the Kings Bench transcripts of Indictments, Outlaweries, Attainders, and Conuictions, had before the Iustices of peace within the time limited by Statute. q. Lamb: Eirenarchia lib: 4. ca: 3. fo: 379.

n Clarke of the Signet, Cléricus Signetti, is an Officer continually attendant on his Maiesies Secretarie, who alwaies hath the custodie of the priuie Signet, as well for sealing his Maiesies priuie Letters, as also such grants as passe his Maiesies hands by Bill assigned. Of these there be foure that attend in the course, and were used to haue their diet at the Secretaries table. More largely you may reade of their Office in the Statute made Anno 27. H. 8. ca: 11.

o Clarke of the Priuie Seale, Cléricus Priuati Sigilli, is an Officer (whereof there be foure in number) that attendeth the Lord Keeper of the Priuie Seale, or if there be none such, vpon the Principall Secretarie, writing and making out all things that be sent by warrant from the Signet to the Priuie Seale, and are to be pased to the Great Seale, as also to make out (as they are termed) Priuie Seales, vpon any especiall occasion of his Maiesies affaires, for loane or lending of money or such like. Of this Officer and his function, you may reade the Statute Anno 27. H. 8. ca: 11.

p Clarke of the Juries, or Jurata writs, Cléricus Iuratorum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, which maketh out the Writs called Habeas Corpora, and Distringas for appearance of the Iurie, either in Court or at the Assises, after that the Iurie or panell is returned vpon the Venire facias. He entreteth also into the Rolles the awarding of these Writs, and maketh all the continuance from the going out of the Habeas Corpora, vntill the verdict be giuen.

q Clarke of the Pipe, Cléricus Pipe, is an Officer in the Kings Exchequer, who hauing all accounts and debis due vnto the King, delivered, and drawne downe out of the Remembrancers Offices, chargeb them downe into the great Roll: who also writeth summons to the Shyreue to leue the said debis, vpon the goods and chattels of the said debtors: and if they haue no goods, then doth he draw them downe to the Lord Treasurers Remembrancer, to write Extreats against their Land. The Ancient Renewer of the Crowne remaineth in charge before him, and hee setteth the same answered by the Fermers and Shyreuees to the King. Hee maketh a charge to all Shyreuees of their summons of the Pipe and Greenewax, and setteth it answered vpon their accounts. He hath the ingrossing of all leases of the Kings Lands: and it is likely that it was at the first called and still hath denomination of Pipe, and Clarke of the Pipe, and Pipe Office, because their Records that are registered in their smallest Rolles, are altogether like Organe Pipes: but their great Rolles called the Great Roll Anno 37. Ed: 3. ca: 4. is of another forme.

- Clarke of the Hamper or Hanaper, Cléricus Hanaperij, is an Officer in Chancery Anno 2. Ed. 4. ca. 1. otherwise called Warden of the Hamper in the same Statute, whose function is to receive all the money due to the Kings Maistie for the seals of Charters, Patents, Commissions and Writs, as also fees due to the Officers for enrolling and examining the same, with such like. He is tied to attendance on the Lo: Chancelour or Lo: Keeper daily in the Terms time, and at all times of sealing, having with him leather bagges, wherein are put all Charters, &c. after they be sealed by the Lo: Chancelour, and those bagges being sealed up, with the Lo: Chancelours private seale, are delivered to the Comptroller of the Hamper, or Hanaper. Whereas now the Clarke hath with him leather bagges to put in the Charters, it is likely in old times they were Hampers or Baskets, and thereof called Clarke of the Hamper, or Hanaper. This Hanaper representeth a shadow of that which the Romans termed Fiscum, that contained the Emperours treasure. Vi. Hamper, Hanaper.
- Clarke of the Pless, Cléricus Placitorum, is an Officer in the Exchequer, in whose Office all the Officers of that Court (upon speciall privilege belonging unto them) ought to sue or to be sued upon any Action, and thereof called Pless, and Common Pless, because places whereupon Actions in Law are impleaded and sued. Vi. Pless.
- Clarke of the Treasurie, Cléricus Thesaurariae, is an Officer belonging to the Common Pless, who hath the charge of keeping the Records of that Court, and maketh out all Records of Nisi prius, hath the Fees due for all searches, and hath the certifying of all Records in the Kings Bench, when a Writ of error is brought, and maketh out all Writs of Superfideas de non molestando, which are granted for the Defendants, while the Writ of error hangeth. Also hee maketh all exemplifications of Records being in the Treasurie. He is taken to be servant to the Chiefe Justice, but remooneable at his pleasure, whereas all other Officers are for terme of life. There is also a Secondarie or Under-clerke of the Treasurie for assistance, which hath some allowances. There is likewise an Under-keeper, who alwayes keepeth one key of the Treasurie doore, and the chiefe Clarke of the Secondarie another: so the one cannot come in without the other. Vi. Treasurie, Treasorer.
- Clarke of the Effoines, Cléricus Effoionum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pless, who only keepeth the Effoines Roll, and hath for entering every Effoine vj. d. and for every exception to barre the Effoine vj. d. Hee hath also the providing of Parchment, and cutting it into Rolles, and marking the numbers upon them, and the delivring out of all the Rolles to every Officer, and the receiving of them againe when they be written, and the binding and making up of the whole bindles of every Terme. And thus he doth as servant to the Chiefe Justice: For the Chiefe Justice is at charge for all the parchment of all the Rolles. The word Effoines cometh of the French Effoigne, Exoine, m. i. an effoigne, or excuse, or toleration for absence upon a lawfull cause alleged upon oath, fortè à Lat: exoneratus, exempted. Vi. Effoigne.
- Clarke of the Outlawries, Cléricus Velagiarum, is an Officer belonging to the Court of Common Pless, being onely the servant or deputie to the Kings Attorneys Generall, for making out the Writs of Capias velagatum after outlawrie. And the Kings Attorneys name is to every one of these Writs. And whereas vij. d. is paid for the Seale of every other Writ, there is but a pennie paid for the Seale of this Writ, because it goeth out at the Kings suite. Vi. Outlawrie.
- Clarke of the Sewers, Cléricus Suerarum, is an Officer pertaining to the Commissioners of Sewers, writing all things they doe by vertue of their Commission. For the which see the Statute Anno 13. Elix: ca. 9. And Vi. Sewers.
- Clarke Comptroller of the Kings house (whereof there be two) is an Officer in Court, that hath place and seat in the Compting-house, and authority to allow or disallow the charges and demands of Pourviuants and Messengers of the Greencloth, Pourveyors, or other like. He hath also the oversight and comptrolling of all defaults, defects and miscarriages of any inferior Officers, and to sit in the Compting house with the superiour Officers, viz: the Lo: Steward, the Treasorer, Comptroller, and Cofferer, Masters of the Household, and Clarkes of the Greencloth, either for correcting or bettering things out of order: and also for bringing in c. writie provision requisite for the Kings Household, and the censure for failing of carriages and Caris warned and charged for that purpose. This Office you have mentioned Anno 33. H. 8. ca. 12. Vi. Controller, & Greencloth.
- Clarke of the Nilibis, Cléricus Nihilorum, is an Officer in the Exchequer, that maketh a Roll of all such sommes as are Nihilèd by the Shireeues upon their extorts of Greene wax, and delivreth the same into the Lo: Treasurers Remembrancer his Office, to have execution done upon it for the King. Vi. Nilibis.
- Clarke of the Cheeke, is an Officer in Court so called because he hath the cheeke and comptrolment of the Yeomen of the Guard, and all other ordinarie Yeoman Huißers belonging either to his Maistie, the Queene, or the Prince, either giuing leave or allowing their absences or defects in attendance, or diminishing their wages for the same. He also nightly by himselfe or deputie taketh the view of those that are to watch in the Court, and hath the setting of the watch: This Officer is mentioned Anno 33. H. 8. cap. 12.
- Clark Marshall of the Kings house, seemeth to be an officer that attendeth the Marshall in his Court, and recordeth all his proceedings mentioned Anno 33. H. 8. cap. 12. Vi. sub voce Marshall.

- d Combaf in our Common Law is taken for a formall triall of a doubtful cause or quarrell by the sword or bastons, of two Champions. Of this you may reade at large, Paris de Putco de re militari & duello. Alciat: de duello. Hotoman: dispoit: feudaliu, cap: 42. As also in our Common Lawyers of England, namely Glanville li. 14 c. 1. Bracton lib: 3. tractat: 3. cap: 3. Britton cap: 22. Horns Mirrour of Iustices, lib: 3. cap: des exceptions in fine proxima ante C. Iuramentum duelli apud Dier: fol: 301. nu: 41. 42. & Staunf: Ples of the Crowne, lib: 2. fo: 176. b. and 177. a. saith that it is an ancient triall in our Law, and much vsed in times past, as appeareth by diuers Presidents in the times of Edward the Third, and Henry the Fourth: which is not yet out of vse, but may be by the Law in vse at this day, if the Defendant will, and nothing can be drawn in Conter-plee thereto. And it is said M. 37. H. 6. f. 3. that to wage Battle, or to Combaf, is by the Ciuill Law: but Moile saith it is by our Common Law, and as Stanford ples of the Crowne, fo: 177. a. saith, * That they shall come armed into the Court, and issue: the Plaintiff begins his appeale, &c. and the Defendant pleads not guilty, and (as Britton feteith it downe, fo: 41.) vndertakes to defend it with his bodie, &c. And after, one taketh another by the hand, and first the Defendant saith in this manner: Heare you this, you man whom I hold by the hand, which are called John by your Christian name, that I Pierce, such a yeere, such a day, in such a place, the aforesaid murder of N, neither did doe, nor goe about, neither purpose, nor assented to such a Felonie, as you haue alleged. So God me helpe, and his Saints. And after the Accuser saith: Heare you this you man whom I hold by the hand, which are called P. by your Christian name, you are perjured: For on such a day, such a yeere, in such a place, you did such treason or such a murder, which I haue alleged against you, or whereof I challenge you. So God mee helpe, and his Saints. Then they shall be both lead into a certaine place, where both further say, Heare you this, Iustices, that we I and P. haue neither eat nor drunke, nor done any other deed whereby the Law of God should be abused, or the Law of the Duell aduanced. And forthwith there shall be an Oyez or Proclamation made, that none shall bee so bold but the Combatants, to specke or doe any thing that shall disurbe the Combat or Battle: and whosoever shall doe against this Proclamation, shall suffer imprisonment for a yeere and a day. Then they shall fight with weapons, but not with any iron, but with two staves or bastons tips with barne, of an ell long, both of equal length, and each of them a Target, and with no other weapon may they enter the lists. And if the Defendant can defend himself till after Sunne set, and as my Author saith, till you may see the starres in the firmament, and demand judgement if he ought to fight any longer, then must there be judgement given on the Defendants side. And Bracton agreeeth herewith in these words: *Quoddam appellatus se defenderit contra appellatorem, tota die, usque ad horam quatuordecim incipiant apparere, tunc recedat Appellatus, quietus de appello, ex quo Appellatus se obligavit ad conuincendum eum, una hora diei, quod quidem non fecit. When the Defendant doth plead to the appellation not guilty, and undertakes to defend it with his bodie, he must throw downe his gauntlet or gloue into the Court: and if the Plaintiff doth enter Rejoinder to the Battle, then must hee take up the gloue or gauntlet; but if the Plaintiff doth counterplead unto it, then must hee suffer the gloue or gauntlet to lie, and the other shall demurre in Law or void him of the Appelle, because he refused his gloue or gauntlet. When they are sworn, they must produce Mainprisers or pledges to performe the Combat or Battle, and then the Court shall appoint them a day and place to fight, and as Fitz. p. 385. further saith, that the Challenger shall be at libertie, but the Defendant in the custody of the Marshall, and the Marshall shall array them both at their owne charge, and that must be the night before the Battle, for that they may be ready in the field or lists by Sunne rising. The formes of Battle described 17. Edw. 3. & 9. H. 4. differ from that described by Bracton and Britton, and that described by Dier, Termino Trinitatis, Anno 13. Eliz. as hee sets it downe betweene one Cheuin and another Paramour a Kentish Gentleman, about the triall of Land, and leuying a fine thereof: and on the issue Paramour chose the Triall by Combat or Battle, and had a Champion one George Thorne a Gentleman of Kent, and no doubt his dearest friend, that would enter the lists to such a hazard of life, &c. And the other had one Henrie Nailer a Master of Fence, and the Court awarded the Battle, and the Champions were mainprised and sworn (Quere formam Iuramenti) to performe the Combat or Battle, apud Totchull in Westm. 18. Iuni, prox. post crast. Trinitatis: which was the first day of the Vtas of the Terme, and on the day appointed was there a List made fowre square on even ground, every square 60. foot, and East, West, North, and South: and the place and seat of the Judges was made withowt, yet close upon the Lists, and a Barre made for the Sergeants at Law, & circa horam decimam eiusdem diei, illic Iustices or Judges of the Common Pleas, viz. Dier, Weston, Harper, (the fourth, namely Welch, was away by reason he was sicke) did repaire to the place in their Roabes of Scarlet, with their other Habits and Coifes, and the Sergeants at Law also: and there a Proclamation being made with three Oyez, the Demandants were first called for, and they came next. After that, the Mainprisers of the Champions were called to bring forth first the Champion of the Demandant or Challenger, which came into the place in Rugged Sandals, bare legged from the knee downward, and bare headed, and bare armes to the elbow, being brought in by the hand of a Knight. * Sir Ierome Bowes by name, who carried a Red Baston, of an ell long, tipped with horne, and a Yeoman carrying the Target, made of double leather, and they were brought in at the North side of the Lists, and went about the side of the Lists, until the middle of the Lists, and then came towards the Barre before the Judges, with three solemn Congies, and there was hee made to stand at the South side of the place, being the right side of the Court. And after that, the other Champion was brought in, in like manner, at the South or contrary side of the Lists, with like Congies, &c. by the hands of * Sir Henry Cheney Knight, &c. and was set on the North side of the Barre (quidam oppositio to the other Champion) and two Sergeants being of counsell of each partie, in the middle betweene them: This done, the Demandant was solemnly called againe, and appeared not, but made default: upon which default, Barham Sergeant for the Tenant, praieth the Court to record the Nonsuit; which was done: Then Dier Chief Justice reciting the briefe, the matter, and issue of the Battle or Combat, and the oath of the Champions to performe it, and the prefixed day and place, gives finall judgement against the Demandant, and that the Tenant shall hold the Land, to him and to his heires for ever quietly, from the said Demandant or Challenger, and their heires for ever, and the Demandants and their Pledges, de prosequendo, to be at the mercy of the Queene, &c. And then was there a solemn Proclamation made, that the Champions and all others there present (which by estimation were about 4000. persons) should depart in Gods peace, and the Queene. And so they departed with a shout, God saue the Queene. Likewise, according to the Lawes and ancient Customes of the Realme of England, 9. Iacobi Termino Hilarij, A Gentleman, by name M^r. Egerton, having challenged another Gentleman, one M^r. Robinson, for the killing of the brother of M^r. Egerton, slaine in the field upon a quarrell betweene the said M^r. Egerton slaine, and one M^r. Morgan, with whom (as it is said) the said M^r. Robinson at the same time went as a friend into the field, &c. The proofes being no more apparent, and the Defendant challenged, &c. as by the formes of our ancient Lawes first above recited, it was granted by the Judges of the Land, that it should be tried by Combat: The Gloue or Gauntlet was cast downe in the open Court, ex parte provocantis, and received in due forme, ex parte defendentis. The Oath was administered solemnly, and pledges put in by each partie, four sufficient men to answer for either, body for body. But an error or scape being made in the plea, the bill was frustrated, so that they came not at all to the Lists. An Antiquarie, * Verstegan by name, in his Booke intituled, A Restitution of decayed Intelligence, in Antiquities concerning the most noble and renowned English Nation, sets it downe in these words, and saith thus: In the triall by Single Combat or Camp-fight, the accusor was with the perill of his owne bodie to proove the accused guilty, and by offering him his gloue, to challenge him to this triall: the which the other must either accept of, or else acknowledge himselfe culpable of the crime whereof he was accused. If it were a crime deserving death, then was the Camp-fight for life and death, and either on horsebacke or on foot. If the offences deserved imprisonment, and not death, then was the Camp-fight accomplished when the one had subdued the other, by making him to yeeld, or unable to defend himselfe, and so hee taken prisoner. The accused had the libertie to chouse another in his stead, but the accusor must performe it in his owne person, and with equalitie of weapons. No Women were admitted to behold it, nor no men children under the age of thirteene yeeres. The Priests and people that were spectators, did silently pray that the victory might fall unto the guiltlesse. And if the fight were for life or death, a Beere stood ready to carry away the dead bodie of him that should be slaine. None of the people might cry, strike out, make any noise, or give any signe whatsoever. * This was so strictly and severely punished at Hall in Swevia, (a place ap-* pointed for Camp-fight) that the Executioner stood beside the Judges, ready with an axe to cut off the right hand and left foot, of the parties so offending. Hee that (being wounded) did yeeld himselfe, was at the mercie of the other, to be killed, or to be let live. If he were slaine, then was he carried away, and honourably buried; and he that slue him reputed more honorable than before. But if being overcome he were left alive, then was he by sentence of the Judges, declared utterly void of all honest reputation, and neuer to ride on horsebacke, nor carrie armes. Verstegan, pag. 64.

* The order and manner of Single Combat, Camp-fight, or Triall by Battle.

2195 a Comedie or Enterlude. G. Comedie, f. I. H. P. Comedie. B. Commedie, Kommedie. T. Comedy, Komedy. Br. Kommed. I. Comedia. Gr. κωμωδία, a κωμω, i. vicus, affreus, & ὁδός, i. canticum, a song, quoniam in principio Comedie suas cantabant comedias in vicis, because at the first they were wont to sing their Comedies in the streets. Fabula genus, cuius prima aequa vite imaginem, velut in speculo representans. Dicta est autem Comedia a τὸν κωμω, hoc est, a vicis, ut quidam volunt: propterea quod Atheniensibus nondum in urbem coactis, & adhuc per vicis dispersis, prima poemata huius rudimenta a iuuentute inuenta credantur. Sive ut alij malunt, a Como, lascivia & comestationis Deo, cui iuuentus indulgens, rudia & inculta carmina profundebat: quibus quos videbatur, nominatum perstringebat. Perim quum eo genera licentia Poete nimis petulant abuterentur, atque optimi cuiusque nomen inuaderent, lege cautum est, ne hoc poematis generis cuiquam in posterum uti liceret. Periere ergo stilum (ut inquit Horatius) formidine sustinuit: & in Veteris Comedie locum nona successit, in qua ficta argumenta tractare caperunt, & humana vite similitudinem, veluti penitillo quodam exprimere. q. Calep: Vi. Stage-play.

De quibus q. Gregor: lib: de beneficijs, cap: 11. num: 11. hec habet verba: Præceptorie dicte commendæ sacrorum militum veluti ordinis hospitalij S. Iohannis Hierosolymitani, beneficia quidem secundum quid Ecclesiastica dicuntur, à Barbaria ad Clement: causam, Col: 151. de electione. Tamen non proprie dicuntur ex genere communium beneficiorum, eo quod persone conferentes, & quibus conferuntur, non sunt Laici vel Ecclesiastici, sed tertij Ordinis. De his sic mentio cap: exhibita de priuilegijs de extrauag: com: in cap: Dudum de decimis. These in many places of our Realme are tearmed by the name of Temples, because they sometime belonged to the Templars. Of which you may read Anno 29. H. 8. cap: 2. & Anno 32. eiusdem, cap: 24. He which had the gouernment of any such Mannour or house, was called the Commander, who had nothing to dispose of it, but to the vse of the Priorie, taking only his subsistence thence, according to his degree, and was vsually a brother of the same Priorie. Author of the new termes of Law, verbo Commāndie. And of these Gregorius Tolosanensis lib: 15. sui syntagmatis, cap: 34. hath these words: Monimus superiori capite, crescente numero peregrinorum, iuxta Templum Hierosolymitanum Xenodochium edificatum, Tit: Diui Iohannis, quo exciperentur peregrini, quos Canobia capere non possunt. Huius ergo ministerio quoque viri pii nobiles se deuenerunt, qui & peregrinos tuerentur, & à latronum seu Agarenorum incurfu defenderent. Horum professio est votum solenne paupertatis, & abdicatio in proprium, castitatis, & obedientie. Proinde propter primum votum, nihil proprii habent, vel habere debent, sed accipiunt annonam, quam diu viuunt, vel præceptorias, quas vocant Commāndies, administrant quam diu eas possident, & opatione mutant, vel ex magistri licentia permittunt reddituri morientes, quæ apud eos reperientur societati. Of these Corasius in his Paraphrase Ad Sacerd: Mat: parte primæ: ca: 3. saith thus: Præceptorie Rhodenses, cum non nisi fratribus Hierosolymitanis, atque ita personis Ecclesiasticis conferantur, beneficijs Ecclesiasticis annumerari merito debent.

Common Bench. f Common Bench, Bancus Communis, is sed for the Court of Common pleas, Anno 2. Ed: 3. ca: 11. so called as M. Camden saith in his Britannia 129. quia Communia Placita inter subditos, iure nostro, quod commune vocant, in hoc disceptantur: that is, the Pleas or Controuersies tried betweene common persons.

g Common Law, Communis Lex, hath three diuers significations: which see in the Author of the New Termes of Law.

Common Pleas. h Common Pleas, Communia Placita, a the Kings Court now held in Westminster Hall, but in ancient time mooueable, as appeareth by the Statute called Magna Charta, cap: 11. as also Anno 2. Ed: 3. cap: 11. and Puilla oculi, parte 5. cap: 22. But M. Gwin in the Preface to his Readings saith, that vntill the time that Henry the Third granted the Charter, there were but two Courts of Iustice in all: whereof one was the Exchequer, and the other the Kings Bench, which was then called Curia Domini Regis, and Aula Regia, because it followed the Court or King: and that vpon the grant of that Charter, the Court of Common Pleas was erected, and settled in one place certayne, viz: at Westminster, wherefoeuer the King lay. Thereupon M. Gwin vt supra, saith that after that al the Writs ran, Quod sit coram Iusticiarijs meis, apud Westmonasterium, whereas before the party was commanded by them to appeare coram me vel Iusticiarijs meis, simply without addition of place, as he well obserueth out of Glanville and Bracton, the one writing in Henry the Second time, before this Court was erected, the other in the latter end of Henry the Third time, who erected this Court. All ciuill causes, both reall and personall are, or were in former times tried in this Court, according to the strict Law of the Realme. And by Fortescue ca: 50. it seemeth to haue beene the only Court for reall causes. The chiefe Iudge thereof is called the Lord Chiefe Iustice of the Common Pleas, accompanied with three or foure Assisants or Associates, which are created by Letters Patents from the King, and (as it were) enstalled or placed vpon the Bench by the Lo. Chancelour and Lo. Chiefe Iustice of that Court, as appeareth by Fortescue ca: 51. who expresth all the circumstances of this admission. The rest of the Officers belonging to this Court are these, the Custos Breuium, three Protonotaries or principall Notaries, otherwise called Prenotaries, Chirographer, Filazers in number 14. Exigenters 4. Clarke of the Warrants, Clarke of the Iuries or Iurata Writs, Clarke of the Treasurie, Clarke of the Kings siluer, Clarke of the Escheins, Clarke of the Outlaweries: whose offices and functions looke in their proper places. Vi. etiam Common Bench.

- b a Confirmatum, a Law term, is a strengthening of an estate formerly had, and yet voidable, though not presently void. For example, a Bishop granteth his Chancellorship by patent for the term of the Patentee's life. This is no void grant, but voidable by the Bishop's death, except it be strengthened by the confirmation of the Deane and Chapter. See more of this in Westpart: prim: Symbol: lib: 2. sect: 506. - b a Confiscate, Confiscatus, a Law term. It may be said to come either from the Lat: Confiscare, or the French Confisquer, in publicum addere. All these words are drawn from fiscus, which originally signifieth a hamper, pannier, basket, or creile: but metonymically the Emperours treasure, because it was anciently kept in Hampers. And though our King keeps not his treasure in such things, yet as the Romans said that such goods as were forfeited to the Emperours Treasure for any offence, were bona confiscata: so doe we those that are forfeited to our Kings Exchequer. See more of these Goods Confiscate in Fitz: namb: lib: 3. cap: 24.

- 2298 Conge d'elire, i. venia eligendi, leave to chuse. It is a mere French word, and signifieth in our Common Law the Kings permission royall to a Deane and Chapter in time of vacation to chuse a Bishop, or to an Abbe or Prior to chuse their Abbot or Prior. q. Fitz: namb: lib: 169. B. 170. B. C. & c. Touching this matter, M. Gwin in the Preface to his Readings saith, that the King of England, as Sovereigne Patron of all Archbishopricks, Bishopricks, and other Ecclesiasticall Benefices, had of ancient time free appointment of all Ecclesiasticall Dignities, whensoever they chanced to be void, inuelling them first per Baculum & Annulum, i. with a staffe and a Ring, and afterward by his Letters Patents: And that in proesse of time he made the election over to others, vnder certaine formes and conditions: As namely, that they should at every vacation, before they chuse, demand of the King Conge d'elire, that is licence and leave to proceed to election, and then after the election, to crave his royall assent, & c. And further he affirmeth by good prooffe out of Common Law Books, that King Iohn was the first that granted this, and that it was afterward confirmed by Westminster: which Statute was made Anno 3. Ed: prim: And againe by the Statute articuli Cleri ca: 2. which was ordained Anno 25. Ed: 3. Statuto tertio.

bb a Coniuration in the Common Law is used for such as haue personall conference with the Diuell or euill spirit, to know any secret, or effect any pur- pose. Anno 5. Eliz: ca: 16. * And the difference betweene Coniuration and Witchcraft, is, that the Coniurer seimeth by prayers and inuocation of Gods powersfull names, to compell the Diuell to say or doe what he commandeth him: The Witch dealeth rather by a friendly and voluntarie conference or agree- ment betweene him or her and the Diuell or Familiar, to haue his or her turne serued in lieu or stead of blood, or other gift offered vnto him, especially of his or her soule: So that a Coniurer compacts for curiositie to know secrets, and worke maruels; and the Witch of meere malice to doe mischiefes: And both these differ from Inchaunters or Sorcerers, because the former two haue per- sonall conference with the Diuell, and the other meddles but with Medicines and ceremoniall formes of words called Charmes, without apparition. Vide Enchanter, Sorcerer.

2326-1 Conservatour or Conservator of the peace. L. Conservator vel Custos pacis, a Keeper or Preserver of the peace, is he that hath an especial charge by virtue of his Office, to see the Kings peace kept: which peace learned M. Lamberd defineth in effect, to be a with-holding or abstinence from that injurious force and violence which boisterous and unruly persons are in their natures prone to rise toward others, were they not restrained by Lawes and feare of punishment. Of the Conservators hee further saith thus: That before the time of King Edward the Third, who first erected Iustices of Peace, there were sundrie persons, that by the Common Law had interest in keeping of the peace. Of these some had that charge, as incident to their Offices which they did beare, and so included within the same, that they were nevertheless called by the name of their Office only. Some others had it simply as of it selfe, and were thereof named Custodes pacis, Wardens or Conservatours of the peace. The former and latter sort he againe subdivideth: which reade in his Eirenarcha, lib. 1. cap. 3.

2326-2 Conservatour of the truce and safe conduct, (i. Conservator induciarum & saluorum Regis conductuum) was an Officer appointed in every Port of the Sea, under the Kings Letters Patents, and had 40. pound for his yearly stipend at the least. His charge was to enquire of all offences done against the Kings truce, and safe conduct upon the maine Sea, out of the countreies, and out of the Franchises of the Cinque Ports of the King, as the Admirals of custome were wont to doe, and also such other things as are declared Anno 2. H. 5. cap. 6. Touching this matter you may reade another Statute Anno 4. H. 5. cap. 7.

2326-3 to Conserve or keepe. G. Conserver. I. Conservare. H. P. Conserver. L. Conservere, a con & servare, to keepe together. B. Bewahren, Behoeden. T. b Consideration is in the Law that which the Grecians call συναλλαγμα, (a συν, i. con, & ἀλλαγμα, i. mutatio, commutatio, ex ἀλλο-σιν, iue ἀλλοθι, i. permuto, commuto) that is to say, the materiall cause of a contract, without the which no contract bindeth. This Consideration is either expressed, as if a man bargain to give 20. shillings for a horse; or else implied, as when the Law it selfe enforceb a Consideration: as if a man come into a common Inne, and there staying some time, taketh both meat and lodging, or either for himselfe and his horse; the Law presumeth, that hea intendeth to pay for both, though nothing be further covenanted betweene him and his Host: and therefore if he discharge not the house, the Host may stay his horse. q. Fulb. paret. tract. contractus fo: 6. a. b.

Consultorium, a consultere, to stay in: estque locus in quo Clerici consilium iniuri consilium: because it is a place to stay in, before and while they are in consultation. Gr. βουλευτήριον, a βουλευώ, i. consilium agito, consulto, dilibero, a βουλή, i. consilium.

c Consultorie is a word borrowed of the Italians, or rather Lombards, signifying as much as Prætorium or Tribunal, vocab: viriusque Iur: It is used for the place of Justice in the Court Christian.

2328 to Consolidate. G. Consolider, Soulder. I. Consolidare, Solidare. H. Consolidar, Soldar. L. Consolidare. Vi. to Shoulder.

b Consolidation in our Common Law is used for the combining and uniting of two benefices in one. q. Brooke titulo Vnion. This word is taken from the Ciuill Law, where it signifieth properly an uniting of the possession, occupation, or profit with the proprietie. For example, if a man haue by legacie usufructum fundi, and after ward buy the proprietie, or fee simple (as we call it) of the heire, hoc casu consolidatio fieri dicitur. S. 3. De usufructu in infinitum. Vi. Vnion, & Unitie of possession.

b Conspiracie. Though in Latine and French it be used for an agreement of men to doe any thing, either good or bad, yet in our Lawyers Bookes it is alwaies taken in the euill part. It is defined Anno 34. Ed: prim: Statut: 2. to be an agreement of such as doe confederate or binde themselves, by oath, covenant, or other alliance, that every of them shall beare and aid the other falsly and maliciously to indignt, or falsly to misone or maintaine ples: and also such as cause children within age to appeale men of Felonie, whereby they are imprisoned and sore greeued: and such as receive men in the Countreies, with Liures, or fees to maintaine their malicious enterprise: and this extendeth it selfe as well to the takers as the giuers, and Stevards and Bailiffes of great Lords, which by their seignorie, office or power, undertake to beare, or maintaine quarrels, ples, or debates, that concerne other parties, than such as touch the estate of their Lords, or themselves. Anno 4. Ed. 3. cap. 11. Anno 3. Hen. 7. cap. 13. Of this see more Anno 1. H. 5. c. 3. & Anno 18. H. 6. cap. 12. As also in the new Booke of Entries, ver: Conspiracie. And being thus taken as afore mentioned, it is confounded with Maintenance and Champertie: but in a more speciall signification it is taken for a confederacie of two at the least, falsly to indict one, or to procure one to be indicted of Felonie. And the punishment of conspiracie vpon an indictment of Felonie at the Kings suit, is that the partie attainted leese his Franke law, to the intent that he be not empanelled vpon Iuries, or Assises, or such like employments, for the testifying of truth. And if he haue to doe in the Kings Court, that he make his Atturney, and that his lands, goods, and chattels be seised into the Kings hands, his lands estreated (if he finde no better fauour) his trees rased, his bodie committed to prison. 27. lib: assis: 59. q. Cromptons Iustice of peace, f. 156. b. This is called villanous iudgement, or punishment. See Villanous Iudgement. But if the partie grieved sue vpon the writ of Conspiracie, then see Fitz: Nat: bnf: 114. D. 115. I. Conspiracie may be also in cases of lesse weight. Idem fo: 116. A. And see Franke Law.

The dignity of a Constable.

b Constable (Constabularius vel Conestabulis) is as some think a Saxon word compounded of Cuning or Cing and Staple, which doe signifie the key and hold of the King. q. Lamb: Duties of Constables: nu. 4. Others say of these two words Comes stabuli; which seemeth to be the more probable, because we have this Officer from France (as most others) and not from the Saxons. So Tilius in his Commentaries (de rebus Gallicis) lib. 2. cap. de Conestabulis, quia praestabat stabulo, i. equilli regis, seu hippocomiz. This Office is ancient here in England, and mentioned by Bracton, seeming to answer him that was called Tribunus celerum under the first Kings of Rome, and afterward Magister Equitum. This word is diversely used in our Common Law: first for the Constable of England, who is called Marshall. q. Stavyn: p. l. cor. 1. 65. of whose great dignitie and authoritie, a man may finde many arguments and signes, both in Statutes and Chronicles of this Realme. His sway consisteth in the common peace of the Land, in deeds of armes, and matters of warres. q. Lamb. vbi supra. With him agreeth the Statute Anno 13. R. 2. cap. 2. Statuto 1. q. Smith de rebus Anglo: lib. 2. cap. 25. Of this Officer or Magistrate, q. M^r. Grvin in the preface to his Reading saith to this effect: The Court of the Constable or Marshall determineth controversies touching deeds of armes out of the Realme, and handleth matters concerning wars within the Realme, as Combats, Blazons of armorie, &c. But he may not deale with battell in appeales, nor generally with any other thing that may be tried by the Law of the Land. Reade q. Fortescue cap. 32. This Office was belonging heretofore to the Lords of certain Mannours Iure Feudi: and why it is discontinued. Vi. Dyer fo: 258. nu. 39. Out of this Magistracie of whom and howe, were drawn those lower Constables of Hundreds and Franchises, and first ordained by the Statute of Winchester, Anno 13. Ed. 1. which appointeth for the conservation of the peace, and view of armour, two Constables in every Hundred and Franchise, which in Latine are called Constabularij Capitales, and now adiaies called High Constables, because continuance of time, and increase both of people and offenses, hath againe under these made others in every towne, called Pettie Constables, in Latine Subconstabularios, which are of like nature, but of inferior authoritie to the others, as you may read at large in that learned mans Treatise before cited: as also Sir Thomas Smith lib. 2. cap. 22. Beside these there be Officers of peculiar places called by this name, as Constable of the Tower, q. Stavyn: p. l. cor. fol. 152. And Ann. 1. H. 4. cap. 13. Stowes Annals 8. 12. Constable of the Exchequer, Anno 5. H. 3. Statute 5. Constable of Dover Castle, Camden Britan: pag. 239. Fitzh: nat. b. r. fo: 240. Otherwise called Castellani, Westminster. 1. ca. 7. Anno 3. Ed. 1. But these be properly Castellani, as M. Lambard noteth, though combined in name with the others. See the Statute Anno 32. H. 8. cap. 38. M. Manwood parte primae: cap. 13. of his Forst Lawes maketh mention of a Constable of the Forst.

2343 a Consul. Br. Konstl. G. H. P. Cónsul. I. Cónsule. L. Cónsul, is, à consulendo, of giuing counsell, q. Reipub: consulerent, that they should consult, or giue counsell for the good of the common-wealth. Summum erat apud Romanos dignitatis fastigium, post exactos reges, à Iunio Bruto primum introductum, ducentesimo quadragesimo quarto ab urbe condita anno, dictum etiam Cónsul, quod à Senatum populumque Romanum de rebus publicis consuleret, & regere consueuerit, consultationemque exerceat. Penes Cónsulem ut summum ius esset, post reges et actus, lege rogatum est: netamen regiam potestatem sibi ascriberent, cautum est lege, ut ab eis prouocare liceret, neque possent in caput cuius in iussu populi animaduertere. Tantum concessum, ut coercerent, inque carcerem compingerent. q. l. 2. ff. de origiur: Sunt autem Cónsules constituti duo cum imperio annali. Nec quæquam ad eum honorem subiectum legimus, nisi prius per Quæsturam, Aedilitatem, & Præturam, additum sibi parasset. Gradatim enim ad summam dignitatem prouehantur. Raro constat bis reque collatum fuisse Cónsulatum in unum. Nam septies cónsulatum gessisse, proprium fuit vnius Marij. Absentem cum creari non licbat, nec fas erat anno sequente fieri, qui præcedente fuerat. Designati cum essent, Cál: Ianuarij Cónsulatum inibant, ascendentes Capitoliū, & frequentius interrim populo stipati. Statim enim inibant magistratam, nisi creati essent in interregno, aut in demortui locum. Primum quidem hac dignitas tantum in Patricios conferebatur: postea tamen anno ab urbe condita 387. plebej communiati: & tandem plane ad eos translata, anno 581. Cum bella essent indiduri, procedebant cincti Gabino, togæ nimpie in tergum reiectæ, ut vna eius lacinia à tergo reuoluta heminem cingat. In senatu sententias rogabant, inque ijs rogandis, toto post anno eum ordinem obseruabant, quem ante tenebant Ianuarij Calendis. Insignia eorum fuerunt, sella curula regia, & eburnea in qua ius dicebatur. Trabea, seu purpurea pratæta, cum duodecim lictoribus, qui fastes præferbant. Omnes magistratus illis fuerunt subiecti, exceptis Tribunis Plebis. Legationes in Senatum ducebant: illis commissum fuit totum Edictorum siue Senatufconsultorum negotium: bellicus apparatus ad eos pertinebat, & prouid: conscripsit exercitus, consiliumque millenarij duces, & in arario publico sumptus fecerunt. q. Polybius lib. 6. vbi plura legere potes de Cónsulum potestate. Lege Valeriã, à Cónsulibus ad plebem prouocare licebat. Cum iam gessissent Cónsulatum, dicebantur Viri Cónsulares, insigni argumento honoris ac dignitatis: atque ex illis sunt electi Dictatores, Equitum Magistri, & Censores. His Office is to take all things sealed from the Clerke of the Hanaper, inclosed in bags of leather, as it is mentioned in the said Clerkes Office, and opening the bags to note the inst number, and especial effects of all things so received, and to enter the same into a speciall booke, with all the duties appertaining to his Maiesie, and other Officers for the same, and so chargeth the Clarke of the Hanaper or Hamper with the same. h Controller of the Pipe (Contrarotulátor Pipæ) who is an Officer of the Exchequer that writeth out summons twice every yeere to the Shyretees, to lewie the fermes and debts of the Pipe, and also keepeth a controulment of the Pipe. i Controller of the Pell. is also an Officer of the Exchequer, of which sort there bee two, viz: the two Chamberlaines Clerks, that doe or should keepe a controulment of the pell of Receipts and goings out: and in one word, this Officer was originally one that took notes of any other Officers accounts, or receipts, to the intent to discover him if hee dealt amisse, and was ordained for the Princes better securitie: howsoever the name sithence may be in some things otherwise applied. To the prooffe whereof, you may take these few words out of q Fleta lib. 1. cap. 18. in prin: Qui cum fuerint vocati ad hoc, & electi, (speaking of the Coroners) attachari præcipiant appella: qui & capitula coronæ in comitatu præsentent, contra quos Vicecomes loci habeat contrarotulum, tam de appellis & inquisitionibus, quam alijs, officium illud tangentibus. Which Contrarotulum is nothing else but a parol of the same qualitie and contents with the επεροτορον or originall. This also appeareth by Anno 12. Ed. 3. cap. 3. And this significacion it seemeth to have also in France. For there the King hath his receivers of taitles in every Province, and Controulers, qui ad maiorem fidem susceptoribus accedunt, describuntque in tabulis quæ colliguntur. q Gregorij Syntag. lib. 3. cap. 6. num. 6.

2374 to Controuise is an old English word in Geoffrey Chaucer, signifying as much as in our common speech to deulise: and Controuiser in the same Author is a deuliser. It seemeth to be taken from the French controuiser, i. excogitare, to deulise or excogitate. Vi. in Controuise.

2375 Controuersie. G. Controuersie. H. P. I. Controuersia. L. Controuersia, a controuersus, i. set, or turned opposite against another. B. Aerschil, i. differentia. Twistinghe, i. twitten, i. contendere. Vi. Contrention. Br. Ymyssou.

2382 to Conuict. is he that is found guiltie of an offense by the verdict of the Iurie. q Stawnspl: cor: fo: 186.

b Conuiction is either when a man is outlawed, and appeareth, and confesseth, or else is found guiltie by the Inquest. q M. Crompton out of Judge Dyers Commentaries, 275. Conuiction and Attainder are often confounded, q Crompton Iust: of peace fol: 9. a. lib: 4. fo: 46. But q Stawnsford pl: cor: fo: 108. maketh a difference betweene Attainder and Conuiction in these words: And note the diversitie betweene Attainder and Conuiction, &c. For Attainder is larger than Conuiction. A man by our ancient Lawes was said to be conuicted presently vpon the verdict (Guiltie) but not to bee attained vpon conuiction, until it appeared that he was no Clerke, or being a Clerke, and a-manded of his Ordinarie, could not purge himselfe. So that a man was not attained vpon conuiction, except he were no Clerke.

Copihold tenure.

Copihold, (L. Tenura per copiam rotuli curie) is a tenure, for the which the Tenant hath nothing to shew, but the Copie of the rolles made by the Steward of his Lords Court. For the Steward, as he enrolleth and maketh remembrances of all other things done in the Lords Court: so hee doth also of such Tenents as be admitted in the Court, to any parcell of Land, or Tenement belonging to the Mannour. And the Transcript of this is called the Court-roll, the copie whereof the Tenant taketh from him, and keepeth as his owne evidence. ¶ Coke lib. 4. fol: 25. b. This tenure is called a base tenure, because it holdeth at the will of the Lord. ¶ Kitchin fol: 80. chap. Copiholds. ¶ Fitzherbert nat: brefo: 12. B. C. who there saith that it was wont to be called tenure in villenage, and that this word Copihold is but a new name: yet it is not simply at the will of the Lord, but according to the custome of the Mannour. So that if a Copiholder breake not the custome of the Mannour, and thereby forfeit his tenure, hee seemeth not so much to stand at the Lords courtlee for his right, that he may be displaced, hand over head, at his pleasure. These customes of Mannours be infinite, varying in one point or other almost in every severall Mannour. First some Copihold is fineable, and some certaine: that which is fineable, the Lord rateth at what fine or income he pleaseth, when the tenent is admitted unto it: that which is certaine, is a kinde of inheritance, and called in many places customarie, because the tenent dining, and the hold being void, the next of the blood paying the customarie fine, as two shillings for an acre, or such like, may not be denied his admission. Secondly, some Copiholders have by custome the wood growing upon their owne land, which by law they could not have. ¶ Kitchin vbi supra. Thirdly, Copiholders, some be such as hold by the verge in ancient demesne: and although they hold by copie, yet are they in account a kinde of Freeholders: for if such a one commit felony, the King hath (anuum, diem, & va. rum) as in case of Freehold. Some other hold by common tenure, called meere copihold: and they committing felony, their land escheateth to the Lord of the Mannour forthwith. ¶ Kitchin fol: 81. cap. Tenents per verge. Vi. Demaine. Tenent by copie of Court-roll. This in the Saxons time was called Folkland. ¶ Lambert explicat: of Saxon words, verbo Terra.

f Copiholder, or Tenent by copie of Court-roll, is he which is admitted tenent of any lands, or tenements, within a Mannour, that time out of minde by use and custome of the said Mannour, have bene demisable, and demised to such as will take the same in fee, in fee taile, for life, yeeres, or at will, according to the custome of the said Mannour, by Copie of Court-roll of the same Mannour. ¶ West: part: 1. symb: lib: 2. sect: 646.

 2427 * Cornage cometh of the French word cor, i. cornu, a horne: and in our Common Law significeth a kinde of Grand Sergeancie, the seruice of which tenure is to blow a horne, when any inuasion of the Northern Enemy is perceived; and by this many men hold their Land Northward, about the wall commonly called the Picts Wall. q. Camb: Britan: pag: 609. Hence cometh the word cornuare, to blow a horne. Pupilo: cul: part: 5. cap: 22. in charta de Foresta. This seruice seemeth to haue proceeded from the Romans. For I finde Cornicularios mentioned in the Ciuill Law, viz: lib: i. cod: de offic: diuerso Iud: 48. leg: 2. & 3. & li: i. 2. titulo de Apparitoribus prefector: prætorio 53. lege 1. & 3. where q. 2438 a Coroddy, cometh of the Lat: Corrodo, and signifies in our Common Law a summe of money, or allowance of meat and drinke, due to the King from an Abbey or other House of Religion, whereof hee is the founder, toward the reasonable sustentance of such a one of his servants, being put to his pension, as hee thinketh good to bestow it on. And the difference betwene a Corodie and a Pension, seemeth to be, that a Corodie is allowed toward the maintenance of any the Kings servants, that liuesh in the Abbey: a Pension is given to one of the Kings Chaplaines, for his better maintenance in the Kings service, which hee may bee provided of a Benefice. Of both these see Fitz: nat: b: r: fo: 230. 231. 233. who there setteth downe all the Corodies and Pensions certaine that any Abbey when they stood was bound to performe vnto the King. There is mention also of a Corodie in Stavnsford p: r: o: g: fo: 44. And this seemeth to be ancient Law. For in Westm: 2. cap: 25. it is ordained that an Abbé shall lie for a Corodie. It is also apparant by the Statute Ann. 34. & 35. H. 8. cap. 16. that Corodies belonged sometimes to the Bishops from Monasteries: And by the New Termes of Law, that a Corodie may be due to a common person by grant from one to another, or of common right, to him that is founder of a Religious House, not holden in Franke Almoyn. For that tenure was a discharge of all Corodies in it selfe. By which Booke it appeareth also, that a Corodie is either certaine or uncertaine, and that it may bee for life or yeeres, in taile, or in fee.

2442 a Coroner, L. Coronator, is an ancient Officer of this Land, so called because he dealeth wholly for the King and Crowne. There be foure of them commonly in every Countie, and they are chosen by the Freeholders of the same, upon writ, and not made by Letters Patents. ¶ Crompt: Jurisd: f. 116. This Officer, though now he be some inferior gentleman, that hath some smattering in the Law: yet if wee looke to the Statute of Westm: 1. cap: 10. wee shall finde, that he was wont and ought to be, a most sufficient man alwaies, that is the most wise and discreet Knight, that best will and may attend vpon such an Office. Yea there is a rule in the Register: Nisi sit miles, for 177. b. whereby it appeareth, that it was sufficient cause to remooue a Coroner chosen, if hee were not a Knight, and had not one hundred shillings rent of freehold. And the Lord chiefe Iustice of the Kings Bench, is the soweraigne Coroner of the whole Realme in person, i. whereoeuer he remaineth. ¶ L: Affisurum fo: 49. 5. coron: ¶ Coke lib: 4. casu de Wardens, &c. of the Sadlers, fo: 37. b. e a Corporation or communitie: It is that which the Ciuill Law calleth Vniuersitatem, or Collegium, a bodie politique, authorized by the Kings Charter, to haue a Common Seale, a Head Officer, one or more, and members able by their common consent, to grant, or to receive in Law any thing within the compassse of their Charter: euen as one man may doe by Law all things that by Law he is not forbidden: and bindeth the Successours, as a single man bindeth his executor or heire. See ¶ Brookes Abridgement, tit: Corporation, ¶ The New Termes of Law say that a Corporation is a permanent thing that may haue succession: and it is an assemblie and ioining together of many into one Fellowship, Brotherhood, and minde, whereof one is head and chiefe, the rest are the bodie: and this head and bodie knit together, make the Corporation. And of Corporations, some are called spirituall, and some temporall: and of those that are spirituall, some are Corporations of dead persons in law, and some otherwise, and some are by the authoritie of the King onely, and some haue bene of a mixt authoritie. And of those that are temporall, some are by the authoritie of the King also, and some by the Common Law of the Realme. Corporation spirituall of dead persons in the law, is where the Corporation consisteth of an Abbot, and Couent, and these had beginning of the King, and the Bishop of Rome, when he had to doe heere. Corporation spirituall, and of able persons in law, is where the Corporation consisteth of a Deane, Chapter, and Master of a College or Hospitall: and this Corporation had beginning of the King onely. Corporation temporall by the King, is where there is a Mayor, and Communitie. 2523 a County. G. Conté, Comté. I. Contado. H. P. Condado. L. Comitatus. Vi. Countie. It significeth as much as Shire: the one descending from the French, the other from the Saxons, both containing a circuit or portion of the Realme, into the which the whole Land is diuided, for the better government thereof, and the more easie administration of iustice. So that there is no part of the Kingdome, that lieth not within some Countie, and euerie Countie is governed by a yeerely Officer, whom wee call a Shyreue. Of these Counties there be foure of especiall marke, which therefore are termed Countie Palatines, * as the Countie Palatine of Lancaster, of Chester, of Durham, * Fourte Countie and of Ely. And this Countie Palatine is a Iurisdiction of so high a nature, that whereas all ples touching the life or maieme of man, called Ples of the Crowne, be ordinarily held and sped in the Kings name, and cannot passe in the name of any other: the chiefe Governours of these, by especiall Charter from the King, did heretofore send out all Writs in their owne name, and did all things touching iustice, as absolutely as the Prince himselfe in other Counties, only acknowledging him their Superiour and Soueraigne. But by the statute q Anno 27. H. 8. c. 25. this power is much abridged. There be likewise Counties Corporate, as appeareth by the statute Anno 3. Ed. 4. ca. 5. and these be certaine Cities, or ancient Boroughs of the land, upon which the Princes of our Nation haue thought good to bestow such extraordinary liberties. Of these the famous Citie of London is one, and the principall, London, another, q Anno 32. H. 8. cap. 13. the Citie of Chester a third, q Anno 42. Elizabeth. cap. 15. Canterbury a fourth, q Lambert Eiren: l. 1. cap 9. And to these may be added many more: but I haue only obserued out of the Statutes, and other Writers, the Countie of the towne of Kingston upon Hull, q Anno 32. H. 8. cap. 16. And the Countie of Litchfield, q Cromptons Iustice of peace, fo: 59. a. The Countie of the towne of Haurford, q West: Anno 35. H. 8. cap. 26. Of these Counties or Shires, one with another, there are reckoned in England 37. besides twelue in Wales. The word Comitatus is used also for a iurisdiction or territorie among the Feudists. Vi. Palatine.

b a County-Court, (Curia Comitatus) by M^r. Lambard is otherwise called Curia Conuentus, in his explication of Saxon words, and diuided into two sorts: one retaining the general name, as the County-court held euery moneth by the Shyreue, or his deputie the Vnder-shyreue, whereof you may reade in Cromptons Iurisdiction: fo: 231. The other called the turne, held twice euery yeere, once after Michaelmas, and againe once after Easter, Magna Charta cap. 35. and that within one moneth after each Feast. This Countie-Court had in old times the cognition of great matters, as may appeare by Glanville lib. 1. cap. 2. 3. 4. From this Court are exempted onely Arch-bishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, Earles, Barons, all religious men and women, and all such as haue Hundreds of their owne to be kept. Vi. plura in Turne.

e Court, Curia. It cometh of the French Court, which significeth the Kings Palace or mansion house. It springs originally from the Lat: Curia, which significeth one of thirty parts, into which Romulus diuided the whole number of the Romans, sometime also the Senate house. Court with vs significeth diuersly, as the house where presently the King remaineth with his ordinarie retinue, and also the place where iustice is iudicially ministred. Of which you may finde 32. severall sorts in ¶ M. Cromptons Booke of Iurisdiccions well described, and of them most be Courts of Record, some be not, and therefore are accounted base Courts in comparison of the rest. Besides these also ¶ Courts Christian, ¶ Smith de repub: Anglib: 3. cap: 9. which stian why are so called because they handle matters especially concerning Christianitie, so called, and such as without good knowledge in diuinitie cannot bee well iudged of, being held heretofore by Archbishops and Bishops, as from the Pope of Rome, because he challenged the superiortie in all causes spirituall: but sithence they hold them by the Kings authoritie (virtute magistratus sui) as the Admirall of England doth his Court. Whereupon it proceedeth, that they send out their precepts in their owne names, and not in the Kings, as the Iustices of the Kings Courts doe. And therefore as the appeale from these Courts did lie to Rome, now by the Statute Anno 25. H. 8. cap: 19. it lieth to the King in his Chaucerie.

f Court leet, or law day. Vi. Let.

g Court Baron, Curia Baronis, is a Court that every Lord of a Mannour (which in ancient times were called Barons) hath within his owne precincts. Barons in other Nations haue great territories and iurisdiccions from their Soueraignes, as may be proued out of ¶ Cassianus de gloria mundi, part: 5. considerat: 56. by ¶ Vincent: de Franchis descif: 211. and many others. Of this Court Baron you may reade your fill in ¶ Kitchin, that writeth a large booke of it, and of Court Leet. ¶ Sir Edward Coke in his fourth Booke of Reports, amongst his Copie hold Cases, fol: 26. b. saith, that this Court is two after a sort: and therefore if a man hauing a Mannour in a Towne, and doe grant the inheritance of the Copie-holders thereunto belonging into another, this Grantee may keepe a Court for the custome tenements, and accept surrenders to the use of others, and make both admistances and grants. The other Court is of Free-holders, which is properly called the Court Baron, wherein the suiters, that is, the Free-holders be Iudges, where-as of the other the Lord or his Steward is Iudge.

h Court of Piepouders. Vi. Piepouders.

i Court Christian, Curia Christiana. See in the word Court, Curia, supra.

k Court of Requests, Curia Requestarum, is a Court of equite of the same nature with the Chaucerie, principally instituted for the helpe of such Petitioners as in conscionable cases deale by supplication with his Maestie. This Court, as M. Gwin saith in the preface to his Readings, had beginning from commission granted by Hen. 8. to the Masters of Requests, whereas before that time (by his opinion) they had no warrant of ordinarie iurisdiction, but trauelled betweene the King and the Petitioner, by direction from the Kings mouth. But ¶ Sir Iulius Cesar, sometime a Master heereof, in a Treatise of his, painfully and iudiciously gathered from the Records of the same Court, plainly sheweth, that this Court was Anno 9. Henr. 7. though then called by the Masters of Requests (as now it is) but more at large by others of the Kings most honourable Councell, whom he pleased to employ in this seruice.

Descriptio Crocodili.

relinendumque inuiles habet. q. Matth. in Diof: He only mooues the upper 144. S. lus Egypto, & ijs regionibus que Nilo alluuntur, cognitus. Cute vique adeo dura, vt in nulla sui parte, nisi in solo ventre, penetrari possit.
Lingua non habet, oculos habet in aquis, hebetes, extra, acerrimi visus. Ho-res habet Delphinum & Ichneumonem pisces. Delphinus aquam subit, pinnaque quam in dorso gerit, illi alium subleuat. Ichneumon vero in aper-tas dormientis fauces, teli in morem lapsus, intestina eius erodit. Ponit oua anserina non maiora: hic vero hinc peculiare creditur, vt quamdiu vivat, pullum crescendi faciat finem, vt Aristoteles notat, ad quindecim vsque cubita, & Plinius ad duodeviginti scribit. Conspicuo homine mittit lachrymas, & appropinquanti denorat. Inde factus est locus proverbio, Crocodili lachrymæ. Alium genus in terra viuens, odoratissimis nutritur floribus, cuius intestina inuicem nidori, fumo referi a sunt, quo ad faciei medicamentum, colorisque concolorationem mulieris olim utebantur. q. Horat. in Epod. Colorq; stercore sucum Crocodili. Appellatur Scincus, q. Diofcor. lib. 2. c. 60.

2646 * Crocute, or Crocota, a beast so called. G. Crocote. H.P. Crocuda. I. L. Crocota. Gr. κροκώτα, dict. ab Æthiopico nomine Crocotas.
Est animal ex hyæna & leæna generatum, & humanam vocem imitans.
q. Plin. lib. 8. cap. 30.

2647 * Croft, (L. Crostum) is a little close adjoining to a house, that sometimes is used for a hemp-plot, sometimes for corn, and sometimes for pasture, as the owner listeth. It seemeth to come of the old English word Craeft, signifi-ing Handie-craft, because such grounds are for the most part extraordinarily dressed and trimmed by the labour and skill of the owner.

2648 * Croffier, in Chaucer, and our old English, signifieth those for whom Christ suffered upon the Croffe.

b * Croffes, (Cruce signati) be used by Britton cap. 122. for such as are Pilgrims. The reason may be, for that they wear the signe of the Croffe upon their garments. Of these and their privileges reade q. Bracton lib. 5. part. 2. cap. 2. and part. 5. cap. 29. And the q. Grand Customarie of Normandie cap. 45. Under this word are also signified the Knights of the Order of S. Iohn in Ierusalem, created for the defense of Pilgrims. q. Greg. synag.

Cucking stool. 2716 a Cucking-stole, is an Engine invented for the punishment of Scolds and unquiet women, called in ancient time a Tumbrell. ¶ Lamb: Eirenarchi l. i. cap: 12. fo: 62. In meo. ¶ Bracton writeth this word Tymborella, q. Kitchin (where hee saith that every one having view of Frankpledge, ought to have a Pillorie and a Tumbrell) seemeth by a Tumbrell to mean the same thing. ¶ Cap: Charge in Court Leet, fo: 13. a. L. Tumbrella, Turbaccum, fortassis quia turbas sedat, & pacem conciliat, licet non amore virtutis, tamen formidine eiusdem pena. Mulieribus enim quae rixando, & altercando, & contumeliis afficiendo, vicinos suos (in ferore sanguinis sui) lacerant, & pacem publicam disturbant, refrigerationis gratia, hac pena constituta est, tali morbo peculiare remedium. Sic moris fuit apud antiquos nostros, idem etiam nobis in more positum est, posteri antiquum obtineant. Cucking-stole, or rather Ducking-stole, because sitting in the same (which is in fashion of a chaire) offenders are ducked, i. les downe into the water over head and eares, three or foure times, so that no part of them doth remaine above the water, ducking or ducking downe (though against their willes) as ducks use to doe under the water. 2719 a Cuckqueane, à cuculo (Vi. Cuckold) & verbo Belgico Duene, Cucqueane, quod significat mulierem sterilem, languentem, & languidam, propriissime vero denotat vaccam sterilem. Atque apud Anglos dicitur a Cuckqueane, quae vel prouecta aetate, vel prima florens iuuenta, & messem habens iam pridem messam, nuda sit: & bonis moribus ad institutum antiquorum imbuta, viro tamen inuncta est impudico, qui sui nimium prodigus & profusus, proprio sumptu alenum sile arat: fundum, agrumque alienum coluit, suumque negligere. Vel potest dici vxor cuculi, cum quene à veteribus Teutonibus usurpetur pro vxore sine matrefamilias, & cuculus illam denotet, qui cuculi aue similis, oua sua in nido alieno reponit. Sic mulier hec in loco non coccizat, ut nec alibi vir, ubi tamen (quo iure quāvis iniuria nondum mihi constat) Anglis dicitur a Cuckold, & Cuckqueane, non ex merito proprio sed quoniam alias bonos viros est honor etiam uxoris, sic & hic vxor marito viro, & viro vxori solet applicari.

2808 * a Custome. G. Coustume, f. I. P. Custume. H. Costumbre. L. Consuetudo, iuris, à consueo. Mos, oris, fortè a Græ. ἔθος, idem. B. Gheuwonte, à gheewon, i. consuevis. T. Gewonheit, à gewohnt, i. consuevis. Gr. ἔθος, ab ἔθω, i. consuevisco. Br. Arfer. Custome is all one in signification with our common Lawyers, and Civilians, being by them both accounted a part of the Law. Consuetudo quandoque pro lege feruatur (Taisb q. Bracton) in partibus ubi fuerit more vntium approbata. Longæ enim temporis, vsus, & consuetudinis non est viliis autoritas: li. i. cap. 3. It may be thus more vnaply defined: Custome is a Law or Rite not written, which being established by long use and the consent of our Ancestours, hath bene, and is daily practised. Our Ancestours, and those of our kindred that are vltra tritauum, li. 4. §. Parentem. & de in ius vocando, l. vi. §. Parentes, de gradibus & affini: & nominibus eorum. So that allowing the father to be so much older than his sonne as (Pubertas or) the yeeres of generation doe require, the grandfather so much elder than him, and so forth vique ad tritauum: we cannot say that this or that is a Custome, except wee can iustifie that it hath continued so one hundred yeeres. For tritauum must bee so much elder than the partie that pleadeth it: yet because that is hard to prooue, it is enough for the prooue of a custome by witnesses in the Common Law (as I haue credibly heard) if two or more can depose that they heard their fathers say, that it was a custome all their time, and that their fathers also heard their fathers say, that it was likewise a custome in their time. If it be to be prooued by Record, the continuance of one hundred yeeres will serue. Custome is either generall or particular: Generall I call that which is current thorow England: of which sort you shall finde diuers in the ¶ Doctor and Student, li. i. cap. 7. very worthy to be knowne. Particular is that which belongeth to this or that Countie, as Gauekinde to Kent, or to this or that Lordship, Cite, or Towne. Custome differeth from Prescription: for that Custome is common to mere, and Prescription (in some mens opinion) is particular to this or that man. Again, Prescription may be for a farre shorter time than a Custome, viz: for five yeeres, or for one yeere, or lesse. Example of five yeeres Prescription, you haue in the leuying of a fine. For if a fine duly leuied of Lands or Tenements be not impugned within five yeeres, it excludeth all claime for euer. And if a man omit his continuall claime for a yeere and a day, then the Tenant in possession prescribeth an immunity against the entrie of the Demandant and his heire. ¶ Fitzh: nat: br: fo: 79. ¶ Termes of the Law, verbo Continuall Claime. Out of our Statutes you may haue greater diuersitie: which see collected in the Institutes, q. titulo De vsu cap: & longi temporis prescriptio: So that Brifsonius l. 14. de verb: sign: seemeth to say truly, that Prescription is an exception founded upon so long time runne and past, as the Law limiteth for the pursuit of any action. An example may be taken from those Statutes ¶ Anno 1. H. 8. cap. 4. which enacteth, that in all actions popular, information shall bee made within three yeeres after the offence committed, or else be of no force. Of like nature is the Statute ¶ Anno 7. H. 8. cap. 3. which in some cases maketh one yeeres prescription sufficient against informations. Custome is also used for the Tribute or toll that Merchants pay to the King for carrying in and out merchandize. ¶ Anno 14. Ed. 3. Stat: 1. cap. 2. 1. In which signification it is Latined Custuma. ¶ Regi: orig: fo: 38. a. 12. g. a. And lastly for such seruices, as Tenents of a Mannour owe unto their Lord. ¶ New booke of Entries, verbo Custome.

2809 * Custos Breuium, is the principall Clerke belonging to the Court of Common Plee, whose Office is to receive and keepe all the Writts, and put them upon files, every Returns by it selfe: And at the end of every Terme, to receive of the Protonotaries all the Records of Nisi prius, called the postea. For they are first brought in by the Clerke of Assise of every circuit to the Protonotarie that entred the issue in that matter, for the entering of the iudgement. And then doe the Protonotaries get of the Court peremptorie day, for every party to speake what he hath to allege in arrest of iudgement: which day being past, hee entred the verdict, and iudgement thereupon, into the Rolles of the Court: and that done, he doth in the end of the Terme deliuer ouer to the Custos Breuium all the Records of Nisi prius which came to his hands that Terme: which received, he bindeth into a bundle, and bestoweth them. The Custos Breuium also maketh entrie of the Writts of Covenant, and the concord upon every fine: and maketh forth exemplifications and Copies of all Writts, and Records in his Office, and of all fines leuied. The fines after they be ingrossed, the parts thereof are diuided betwene the Custos Breuium and the Chirographer: whereof the Chirographer keepe alwaies with him the Writ of Covenant, and the note: the Custos Breuium keepe the Concord, and the foot of the fine: upon the which foot the Chirographer doth cause the Proclamations to be endorsed, when they be all proclaimed. This Office is in the Princes gift.

Heb: נֶזֶק nezak. Cognationem habet cum נֶזֶק zikkim, i. compedes, qui sunt uicementis & incommodis, vel quibus astringuntur permixti homines. But for our English word Dammage, it comes as I take it, of the French Dam, or Dommage, signi-fying generally any hurt or hindrance that a man taketh in his estate. But in the Common Law it particularly significth a part of that the Iurors bee to enquire of, passing for the Plaintiffe or Demandant in a ciuill action, be it per-sonall or reall. For after verdict giuen of the principall cause, they are likewise asked their consciences touching costs (which be the charges of suit, called of the Ciuilians expensæ litis) and dammages, which containe the hindrance that the Plaintiffe or Demandant hath suffered by meanes of the wrong done to him by the Defendant or Tenant.

b Dammage tenant, is when a strangers beasts are in another mans ground, without lawfull authoritie or licence of the Tenant of the ground, and there doe feed, tread, and otherwise spoile the corne, grasse, woods, or such like. In which case the Tenant whom they hurt, may therefore take, distraine, and impound them, as well in the night as in the day. But in other cases, as for rent, and seruices, and such like, none may distraine in the night season. q. New Terms of the Law.

Sunt enim 24. horæ in die naturali, & Planetæ sunt 7. qui præstant 24. horis, quas habent in sua potestate hoc ordine: Primus habet primam horam, Secundus habet secundam, sic usque ad septimam: Postea iterum primus habet octavam, secundus habet nonam, & sic usque ad 14. horam. Postea tertius primus habet decimam quintam, secundus decimam sextam, & sic usque ad 21. horam. Quartus iterum primus habet vigesimam secundam horam, secundus vigesimam tertiam, tertius vigesimam quartam horam, & sic finitus est Dies 24. horarum. Quartus ergo Planeta qui sequitur habebit primam horam sequentis diei, & ita ille Dies denominabitur ab eo. Exempli gratia, ponatur quod iste Dies hodiernus sit Dies Saturni, & habeatur ordo Planetarum qui talis est, habito principis à superiori sic, Saturnus, Iupiter, Mars, Sol, Venus, Mercurius, Luna. Igitur Saturnus hodie habet primam horam, Iupiter secundam, Mars tertiam, Sol quartam, Venus quintam, Mercurius sextam, Luna septimam: Iterum Saturnus octavam, Iupiter nonam, Mars decimam, Sol undecimam, Venus duodecimam, Mercurius 13. Luna 14. Rursus Saturnus 15. Iupiter 16. Mars 17. Sol 18. Venus 19. Mercurius 20. Luna 21. Item Saturnus 22. Iupiter 23. Mars 24. vultis autem Sol ergo qui sequitur habebit primam horam sequentis diei, unde ille Dies dictus est Dies Solis, & sic inuenies se enumerare Dies ceteros secundum ordinem Planetarum, ut supra. Daies were called by the Heathens and Romans of the Latine Dijs, that is, Gods, which they then worshipped, amongst whom were the 7. Planets, unto each of which they dedicated a day of the weeke, and called it by the name of that Planet which had the first hour of that day. The names of the 7. Planets are these, in order thus: Saturne, Iupiter, Mars, Sol, Venus, Mercurie, Luna. Now note that in the naturall day there be 24. houres, and Planets 7. which doe gouerne those 24. houres, after this manner: The first Planet hath the first hour, the second hath the second, and so unto the seventh: Again the first planet hath the eighth hour, the second the ninth, so unto 14. Afterward the first planet hath the 15. hour, the second the 16. and so forth to 21. Then yet againe the first planet hath the 22. hour, the second the 23. the third planet the 24. hour, and so the whole naturall day of 24. houres is finished and ended. Therefore the 4. Planet that followeth shall haue the first hour of the following day, and so that day shall take his name of that Planet. As for example, suppose this day were Saturday, let vs beginne with his Planet, being first as they lie in order, Saturne, Iupiter, Mars, Sol, Venus, Mercurie, Luna, as before: therefore for this Saturday, the Planet Saturne hath the first hour, Iupiter the second, Mars the third, Sol the fourth, Venus the fifth, Mercurie the sixth, Luna the seventh, then Saturne againe the eighth, Iupiter the ninth, Mars the tenth, Sol the eleventh, Venus the twelfth, Mercurie the 13. Luna the 14. then Saturne againe 15. Iupiter 16. Mars 17. Sol 18. Venus 19. Mercurie 20. Luna 21. then once againe Saturne 22. Iupiter 23. Mars 24. and the last of that day, then followeth Sol, which is to haue the first hour of the next day, which is called Sunday, in Latine Dies Solis, and so consequently you shall finde the daies of the weeke to fall vnder their proper Planets, by reckoning them and the houres as aboue I haue told you.

Germani cum essent Pagani, ut scribit q. Verfeggan fol: 68. ascribebant primum diem Planetæ Solis, quasi Principi Planetarum. Formata autem fuit effigies Solis ad instar hominis seminudi, coluana superimpofita, facie coruscante, & quasi ignem quibusdam signis seu radijs ruilante, brachijs vtriusque arcuatis. In pectore autem erat rota flammifera, que cursum eius circulem indicaret, radij autem coruscij, seu flammæ, ut lucem & calorem significarent, quo inferiorem hunc mundum calefacit & viuificat. Hanc effigiem seu Idolum collocabant in Templo, & ibi illi sacrificabant. The Germans when they were Pagans, as q. Verfeggan saith, consecrated the first day to the Sunne, as Prince of Planets, whose Image they placed on a Pillar in the Temple, fashioned like a man halfe naked, his face as it were brightned with gleames of fire, and holding with both his armes, bowing arch-wise, a burning wheele before his breast, the wheele being to signifie the course which he runneth round about the world, and the fierie gleames and brightnesse, the light and heat wherewith he warmeth and comforteth the things that live and grow. d. Mon-Day, Mun-Day, or rather Moone-Day, ex antiqua consuetudine Ethnica ascribendi singulos dies septimane alicui Deo seu Planetæ. For as q. Verfeggan saith, pag: 10. & 69. the most ancient Germans when they were Pagans, appropriated the next day unto Sunday unto the especiall adoration of the Moone, who was the next Idoll according to the course of the Daies of the weeke, whereof wee yet retaine the name of Monday in stead of Mooneday. T. Der Hontag, à Hon, i. luna, the moone, & tag, i. dies, a day. Der erst tag in der wuchen, the first day of the weeke, primus dies hebdomade. Gr. εὐχάριστος ἡμέρα, εὐχαρίστητος ἡμέρα, à εὐχαρίστη, i. luna. Heb. יום ראשון iom echad, i. primus dies, the first day.

Tuesday. c. Tues-Day, or the second day of the weeke, had his denomination as q. Verfeggan writeth in his Restitution of decayed Antiquities, pag: 10. of Tuifco, who was chiefe leader and ruler of the German Nation from the Tower of Babel, who in honour of him after his death called this second day Tuif-tag, Tuifco his day. And likewise after his name, euen vnto this day doe in their owne tongue call themselves Tuifsch, and their countrey of Germanie Tuifsch-land. As also the Netherlands vsing heerein the D for the T, doe make it Duifsch and Duifsch-land. q. Berosus, and q. Cornelius Tacitus (a man curious in the searching as well for the originall of the Germans, as the nature and properties of the people and countrey) doe affirm, that Tuifco, called by Tacitus Tuifco, was the first father and ruler of the Germans or Tuifsch people, which by the same and other Authors are called in Latine Teutones, and their tongue lingua Teutonica, and all of Tuifco or Tuifco. And it is to be noted, that the most ancient Germans being Pagans, having appropriated their first day of the weeke to the peculiar adoration of the Sunne, and called it Sunntag, i. Sunday, and the next Hontag, i. Monday, and so the third Tuiftag, which we call Tuesday, from Tuifco their Captaine, they now call it T. Hinstag, B. Hinst-dagh, Dinsten-dagh, Dinst-dagh, à dinst, i. linguum, & dagh, i. dies, q. dies linguæ dicatus. Unde etiam vocatur L. * Dies Martis, quia libus & bellis præst. Mars. q. Kilian: Unde etiam H. Martes. I. Martedi. G. Mardy. Br. Die martir. P. Tercia feyra, à Lat. tertia feria, scil: à die dominica. Unde vocatur etiam Lat. Tertia feria, & Dies Martis. Gr. ἀπὸ τῆς τριτῆς, i. des Martis, ab ἀπὸ, i. Mars, & ἡμέρα, i. dies. Heb. יום שני iom scheni, i. dies secundus, secundum computum nostrum, ut dies dominicus sit septimus, & dies lunæ primus dies hebdomade. Vi. Day. Victim Hærs the Planet.

f. Shrove-tues-Day. Vi. in S. Shrove-tuesday.

g. Wednes-Day or Wens-Day. B. Woenstagh, seu Wodendagh, me. Wednesday. lius tamen & frequentius Goens-dagh, q. Godens-dagh, vel Godes-dagh. Mercurium enim Wode, Wode, & Wode vocant. q. Kilian: Wodentag, à Wodan, i. God, Deus, & tag, i. dies, q. dies Dei, i. Mercurij, quem (ut dictum) Wodan & Godan vocitantur. Vel ut Verfeggan scribit, Woden apud Germanos antiquos & Saxones fuisse quendam bellicolam & fortissimum Principem seu Ducem, cuius effigiem post mortem illius adorabant, sperantes scilicet eius ope & auxilio se posse etiam victoriam consequi, quæ potius illi sacrificabant quos in eo prælio ceperant: & inde ab eius nomine nomen Woden apud eos significat ferocem, furiosum, & qui voce traxerunt etiam Angli suum vocabulum Wood, eiusdem significationis. Hinc frequens apud illos, He taketh on as though he were wood. Sic etiam ab huius nomine habemus denominationem huius diei Wodenday, Wednes-day, quæ in primis ei (tanquam Deo Ethnico) dicatum voluerant. Oportet, ut q. Verfeggan writeth, that Woden was among the ancient Germans and Saxons a most valiant and victorious Prince and Captaine, and his Idoll or Image was after his death honoured, praised and sacrificed unto, that by his aid and furtherance they might also obtine victorie over their enemies: which when they had obtained, they sacrificed such prisoners as in that battle they had taken. Ant from his name this word Woden in their tongue signifieth fierce, furious: as in English when one is in a rage, we say, that hee is wood, or he taketh on as if hee were wood, so of this name Woden, whom after his death they honoured as a God, came our Wodenday in stead of Wodenday. Item Whitwoche, à mitt, quod est medius, & woche, i. septimana, Ang. Mid-week. Quia inter septem dies septimana media est. I. Mierco, vel Merc, d. H. Miercoles. G. Mercedy. B. Wunder-dagh, q. dies Tonantis, à Donder, i. tonitru, & dagh, i. dies. Cui convenit & T. Donnerstag, i. tonantis dies, Iouena enim Tonantem vocant Latini. Sic & Iuno sonoris tonantis dicitur, i. Iouis. Greci etiam Βρονταῖος appellant & Βρονταῖος, i. variè fulminantem, seu tonantem, à Βροντῆ, i. tonitrus, tonitru. Vi. Thor Lat. diem hunc appellatur: Diem Iouis, & Gr. τῆς Διὸς, sic Teut: & Belgæ diem tonantis, i. Iouis. Magis tamen apud vi. & frequentius scribitur & dicitur Durstag, ut referat simul Dei nomen cui dicata, Thor scilicet & Donder. Vi. enim idem refert Auctor, Thor Idoli caput ornatum erat aurea corona, quam 12. lucide circuebant stellæ. Credebatur enim iratum cedere tonitru & fulgura. This Idoll wore on his head a Crowne of gold, and round about were set or fixed twelue bright burnished golden stars. For they were persuaded, that being displeased hee did cause lightning and thunder. I. Gionedi, G. Iéudy. H. Inéues. Br. Die Iov. L. * Dies Iouis, i. Deanes ruralls, are said to be certaine persons, that have certaine iurisdiction ecclesiasticall over other ministers and parishes nere adjoining, assigned vnto them by the Bishop, and Archdeacon being placed and displaced by them. As there be two foundations of cathedrall Churches in England, the olde, and the new. (the new bee those which Henry the 8. upon suppression of Abbeyes, transformed from Abbot, or Prior, and Conuent, to Deane and Chapter, so there bee two meanes of creating these Deanes. For these of the olde foundation are brought to there dignitie much like Bishops: the King first sending out his Congé d'ellire, to the Chapter, the Chapter then chusing, the King yealding his royall assent, and the Bishop confirming him, and giuing his mandate to install him. Those of the new foundation, are by a shorter course installed by vertue of the Kings letters patents, without either election, or confirmation. This word is also applied to divers, that are the chiefe of certaine peculiar churches, or chapells, as the Deane of the Kings chappell, the Deane of the Arches, vj. These the Deane of St. George his chappell in Windsour, the Deane of Bockin, in Essex. The corporation consisting of Deane and chapter, they may jointly purchase lands and tenements to the vse of there Church, and successors, and every one severally likewise may purchase to the vse of himselfe, and his heires. ¶ New termes of law.

the two Consuls, to governe their Common-wealth with authoritie until such time as the Lawes were established and confirmed among them, which they had chosen and picked out of the ancient Greeke Lawes, which they diuided into ten Tables, and had the highest authoritie granted to them, from whom none could appeale, and had likewise power to correct and amend their Lawes. These Decemviri to their ten added two Tables, and called them the Lawes of the twelue Tables, whereof you may reade ¶ Pomponius Latus. They were all deposed for the vnbridled lust of Appius Claudius, who had destroyed Virginea in the third yeere of their raigne. Decemviri ita eti-2988 Deceptione, is a Writ that lieth properly against him that deceitfully doth any thing in the name of another, for one that receiveth harme or damage thereby. q Fitzh: nat: b: fo: 95. This Writ is either original, or iudiciall, as appeareth by the q old Nat: b: fo: 50. where you may see the use of both. For some satisfaction, take these words of that booke: This Writ of deceit, when it is original, then it lieth in case where deceit is made to a man by another, by which deceit he may be disherited, or otherwise unil treated: as it appeareth by the q Register. And when it is iudiciall, then it lieth out of the Rolles of Record: as in case where (scire facias) is sent to the Shyreue, that he warne a man to be before the Iustices at a certaine day, and the Shyreue returne the Writ served: whereas the said man was not warned, by which the partie that sueth the (scire facias) recovereth, then the party which ought to have bene warned, shall have the said Writ against the Shyreue. q New termes of Law, verbo Deceit, saith that the original Writ of deceit lieth, where any deceit is done to a man by another, so that he hath not sufficiently performed his bargain or promise. In the Writ iudiciall he concurrith with the former booke. See the q Reg: orig: fo: 112. and the q Reg: iudiciall in the Table, verbo Deceptione.

2993 de Decimis soluendis pro possessionibus alienigenarum, is a Writ, or Letters Patents, yet extra in the Register, which lay against those that had farmed the Priors aliens lands of the King, for the Rector of the parish, to recover his tithe of them. q Reg: orig: fol: 179.

2994 Deciners, alias Deceners, alias Doziners, (Decennarii) cometh of the French (dizaine, dixas, decas) tenne in number, or else of (disenier, i. dicearchus.) It signifieth in the ancient monuments of our Law such as were wont to have the oversight and checke of tenne Friburges, for the maintenance of the Kings peace. And the limits or compass of their iurisdic-tion was called (Decenna.) q Bracton lib: 3. tract: 2. cap: 15. of whom you may also reade q Fleta lib: 1. cap: 27. and a touch in the q Register orig: fol: 68. b. These seemed to have large authoritie in the Saxons time, taking knowledge of causes within their circuit, and redressing wrongs by way of iudgement, as you may reade in the Lawes of King Edward, set out by M. Lambard num: 32. In latter times I finde mention of these, as in q Britton cap: 12. who saith in the Kings person (as he writes his whole Booke) Vide Britton in littera B. in this manner: Wee vill, that all those which bee 14. yeeres old, shall make oath, that they shall be sufficient and loyall unto vs, and that they will be neither felons, nor assenting to felons. And we will that all be (en dozeine & pleuisper dozeniers) that is, proffesse themselves to be of this or that dozein, and make or offer suretie of their behaviour by these or those dozeniers, except religious persons, Clerkes, Knights, and their eldest sonnes, and women. Yet the same author in his 29. Chapter something toward the end doth say, that all of twelve yeeres old and upward, are punishable for not coming to the Turne of the Shyreue, except Earles, Prelates, Barons, religious persons, and women. q Stavmford pl: cor: fol: 37. out of Fitzherb: hath these words: The like Law is where the Doze-niers make presentment, that a felon is taken for felonie, and delivered to the Shyreue, &c. And q Kitchin out of the Register, and Britton saith thus: Religious persons, Knights, Clerkes, or women, shall not be Deceiners, fol: 33. So that heereby I gather, that of latter times this word signified nothing but such an one as by his oath of loyalty to his Prince (for none ordinarily findeth suretie at this day) is settled in the combination or societie of a dozein. And a dozein seemeth now to extend so farre as a Leet extendeth, because in Leets only this oath is ministred by the Steward, and taken by such as are twelue yeeres old and upward, dwelling within the compass of the Leet, where they are sworn. q Fitzherb: nat: b: fo: 161. a. The particulars of this oath you may reade in q Bracton lib: 3. tract: 2. cap: 11. num: 5. he nameth 12. yeeres. Vide In-laugh. A man may note out of the premisses, diuersities betweene the ancient and these our times, in this point of law and government, as well for the age of those that are to be sworn, as also that Decennier is not now used for the chiefe man of a dozen, but for him that is sworne to the Kings peace: And lastly, that now there are no other Dozens but Leets, and that no man ordinarily giueth other securitie for the keeping of the Kings peace, but his owne oath: and that therefore none answereth for anothers transgression, but euery man for himselfe. And for the generall ground this may suffice. Vi. Frankpledge.

Declara-tio. a Declarando it is properly the shewing forth or laying out of any matter or action in any suit. A Declaration is a shewing in writing of the grife & complaint of the Demandant or Plaintife, against the Tenant or Defen-dant, wherein he supposeth to have received wrong: and this Declaration ought to be plaine and certaine, both because it impeacheth the Defendant or Tenant, and also compelleth him to make answer thereto. But note that such Declaration made by the Demandant against the Tenant or Defen-dant in an action real, is properly called a Count. And the Declaration or Count ought to containe demonstration, declaration, and conclusion. And in demonstration are contained three things (that is to say) who complaineth, and against whom, and for what matter: And in the Decla-ration, what ought to be comprised, how and in what manner the action rest betweene the parties, and when, and what day, yeere and place, and to whom the action shall be giuen. And in conclusion he ought to auerre and profer to prooue his suit, and shew the damage which he hath sustained by the wrong done vnto him.

3089-2 * Demothènes, the name of a most eloquent and famous Orator among the Athenians. G. Demosthène. I. Demosthene. H. P. L. Demosthènes. Gr. Δημοσθένης, q. δῆμος ὄψις, i. robur seu potentia populi: nes, erat enim munimentum quoddam populi Atheniensis, quem orationibus suis eloquentissimis, & vehementissimis veluti stabelli incitabat, & impellebat quocunque visum erat. Sic etiam Hebrei viros nobiles, duces & magnates appellant אֵלִים elim, i. arietes seu postes, & fortitudine & robore, nam ut Arietes, populum dubent præcedere, & veluti postes eius statum, tatusque reipublice salutem, que eorum humeris incumbit, sustinere. Sic Græci etiam viros primates, magnates, & duces appellant ἀριστας, a fortitudine bellica, ἀρις enim est Mars bellorum deus, & sic Demosthènes clarus.

clarus & nobilis Orator, tanquam si dux populi fuisset, dictus, q. δὲ δῆμος δῆμος, i. populi robur. Tanta autem erat ipsius eloquentia fama apud omnes, tantaeque admiratio, ut digito preteritum monstrari solitus sit, cum hoc elogio, δὲ δῆμος δῆμος, i. Hic est ille Demosthenes. Demosthenes that famous Orator was so called by the Athenians, q. δῆμος δῆμος, that is, the strength of the people, which is a name usually given so such as are men in high place and authority, because on them as it were on strong pillars, the welfare of the common people relyeth. His eloquence, and sweet voice both in writing and speaking, was so admired of all men, that as hee passed in the streets they would point at him, and say, This is that Demosthenes.

3090 Demure, sober, mannerly, or modest. Demure, q. à G. de bons mœurs, one of good manners, i. ingenuus, candidus, bene moratus, an ingenious, good natured, well mannered man. Vi. Modest.

3091 Demure. (G. Demeure, f. I. Dimora, Dimoranza) commeth of the French Demeurer, Lat. Dimorari, manere in loco aliquo vel morari. It signifieth in our Common Law a kinde of pawse upon a point of difficultie in any action, and is vs'd substantively. For in every action the controuersie consisteth either in the fact, or in the Law: if in the fact, that is tried by the Jurie; if in law, then is the case plaine to the Iudge, or so hard and rare, as it breedeth iust doubt. I call that plaine to the Iudge, wherein he is assured of the law, though perhaps the partie and his counsell yeeld not vnto it. And in such the Iudge with his Affessors proceeds to iudgement without further worke. But when it is doubtfull to him and his associates, then is there stay made, and a time taken, either for the Court to thinke further vpon it, and to agree if they can: or else for all the Iustices to meet together in the Chequer Chamber, and vpon hearing of that which the Seargeants shall say of both parts, to advise and set downe what is law. And what soeuer they conclude, standeth firme without further remedie. q. Smith de Repub: Anglo: lib. 2. cap. 13. q. West calleth it a Demurre, in Chauncerie likewise, when there is question made whether a parties answer to a bill of complaint, &c. be defectiue or not, and thereof reference made to any of the bench, for the examination thereof, and report to be made to the Court. q. 2. symb. tit. Chauncerie, sect. 29.

3097 a Denizon or Denizen, à Gal: donación, i. donatio, nempti libertatis, aut q. Danes son, i. Dani filius. Danos enim olim rerum potius mouimus, filiosque suos vicinque alienigenos libertate donatos. A Denizen signifieth in our Common Law, an aliene that is enfranchised here in England by the Princes Charter, and inabled, almeist in all respects, to doe as the Kings native subjects doe: namely to purchase, and to possesse lands, to bee capable of any office or dignitie. Yet it is said to be short of naturalization, because a stranger naturalized may inherit lands by descent, which a man made only a Denizen cannot. And againe in the Charter whereby a man is made Denizen, there is commonly contained one clause or other, that abridgeth him of that full benefit which naturall subjects doe enjoy. And when a man is thus enfranchised, he is said to be vnder the Kings proteccion, or esse ad fidem Regis Angliæ, before which time hee can enioy nothing in England. q. Bracton lib. 5. tractat. 5. cap. 25. num. 3. Nay he and his goods might bee seized to the Kings vse. q. Horn: in his Mirrour of Iustices, lib. 1. cap. de la veue de francplege. Vi. Freeman. Br. 3103 a Denyall. Vi. Deniall.

3104 a Denyall. Vi. Denie.

3105 a Denyall. Vi. Denisari.

3106 a Deodonando. (Deodandium) is a thing giuen or forfeited (as it were) to God for the pacification of his wrath in a case of misadventure, whereby any Christian soule comes to a violent end, without the fault of any creature. Example, if a horse should strike his keeper, and so kill him; if a man in driving a cart, and seeking to redresse any thing about it should so fall, as the cart wheele running over him, should presse him to death: if one should be felking of a tree, and giuing warning to one coming by when the tree were neere falling, to looke to themselves, and any of them should be staine nevert heffe by the fall of the tree. In the first of these cases, the horse, in the second the cartwheele, cart and horses, and in the third the tree is to be giuen to God, that is, to be sold and distributed to the poore, for an expiation of this dreadfull euent, though effected by vnreasonable, yea senselesse and dead creatures. q. Stamford: pl. cor. lib. 1. cap. 2. whereof also read q. Bracton: lib. 3. tractat. 2. cap. 5. and q. Britton: cap. 7. and q. West parte prima symb. tit. Indictments sect. 49. And though this bee giuen to God; yet it is forfeited to the King by law, as susteyning Gods person, and an executioner in this case, to see the price of these distributed to the poore, for the appeasing of God stirred vp euen against the earth and place, by the shedding of innocent blood there vpon. q. Fleta saith, that this is sold, and the price distributed to the poore, for the soule of the King, his ancestors, and of all faithfull people, departed this life. lib. 1. cap. 25. verbo de submersis. And it seemeth that this law is grounded vpon that in Exodus cap. 21. Si cornupetierit bos virum vel mulierem, ita vt moriatur, lapidabitur bos, neq. comedetur caro ejus, at Dominus ejus erit innocens. If an oxe goure a man, or woman, that he die, the oxe shalbe stoned to death, and his flesh shall not be eaten, but his master shall goe quit.

3107 a Deodonando, pro rata portionis, is a writ that lyeth where one is distrained for a rent, that ought to be payed by others proportionally with him. For example, a man holdeth ten Oxegangs of land by fealty, and ten shillings rent of the King, and alienateth one Oxegang thereof to one, another, to another in fee. Afterward the Shyreuee or other officer commeth and distreinet only one of them for the rent, he that is distrained may haue this writ for his helpe. q. Fitzh: wat. br. fo. 234.

3108 a Depart or goe away. G. Departir, a parti, i. pars, pource qu'en se partant on va d'une part et l'autre d'une autre, becaule at parting the one goeth one way, and the other another way. s'en aller. I. Partir, Departir, Andar, Andar via. H. Partir, Des-pedir, i. se expedire, to dispatch and away. P. Apartarse, Apartar, Partar, deducitur à Lat: pars, significat enim mettre, & diuiser quelques choses en plusieurs parties, i. res en multas partes diuidere, vt exponit q. Nicod: hinc Departir, est discedere, se loco mouere, & quasi in aliam aliquam partem se recipere, aut à Gr. αποχωρεω, i. ire, proficisci, vel denique ab Heb: פָּרַד parad, i. diuisio, separatio, vnde Lat: partior, & Gal: partir &c. L. Abire, i. ab aliquo ire, abcedere, Discedere, à dis, nota separationis, & cedere, to give place, Facessere, q. cessare facere, to depart and leaue off. q. Bud: Afensi: vel frequentatium, à facio, loco se mouere, concedere, migrare, ab Heb: מִיגַר migar, i. migravit q. Auen: T. Weggehen, ab weg, i. via, & gehen, i. ire, to goe away, Abweichen, ab & weichen, i. cedere, weichen, & Saa: pichen, 3179 a Deuise or Deuice, an invention, a posse, embleme, conceit, coat or motto. H. P. Deuisa. I. Diuisa. G. Deuise, f. deuis, à Deuifer, i. inuenire. Deuise autem proprie est tessera, symbolum, seu ænigmaticum apothegma, quale in regum, nobilium, & generosorum insignijs videmus, vt in Regijs insignijs. Exurgat Deus dissipetur inimici, & Dicu & mon droict. Deu & Ius meum, in insignijs principis, Ich Dien, i. ego seruio, and many other deuises in the armes, and shields of diuers noblemen, and gentlemen.

b Deuise in our common Law, is where a man in his testament, giueth or bequeatheth his goods or his lands to another after his decease. And where such deuise is made of goods, if the executors will not deliuer the goods to the deuise, the deuise hath no remedy by the common law. But it behooueth him to haue a Citation against the executors of the testator to appeare before the ordinary, to shew why he performeth not the will of the testator. For the deuisee may not take the legacie, and serue himselfe, but it must be deliuered to him by the executors. It cometh from the French word Diuiser, i. disper-titi, discernere, separare, distinguere, because those lands or goods which ap-pertaine to the deuiseur, by this act are distributed into many parts. Wherefore I thinke it better written diuise then deuise. Howbeit it were not absurd to deriue this word from the French deuifer, i. fermocinari, consulari, consiliu conferre. For in this sence, it agreeth in some sort with the nature of the act of the testator, and with the Etymologie of a Testament set downe by Iustinian; who saith that testamentum is quasi mentis testatio, tit: de Testamentis ordinari: in Institut: and testatio mentis, cannot be so well, as by talke and conference with our wise and skilfull friends. What deuises are good and what bad you may see some in the q. New termes of law. Verbo Distressio, onis, f. a distringere, angustia, & f. ab angustus, a, um: vnde T. angust, & B. angust nisi velis ab ἀγγύς, i. stranguo, comprimo. q. Heluig: vel a ὠγγύς nagas angustavit. B. nautheft a nauw, i. stritus, angustus. Gr. στενός, στενός, a στενός, angustus. It significat most commonly in the common lawe, a compulsion in certain real actions, whereby to bring a man to appearance in court, or to pay debt, or duty denied. The effect whereof most commonly is, to drive the party distressed to repleine the distresse, and so to take his action of trespass against the distresser, or else to compound neighbourly with him for the debt, or duty, for the which he distresseth. In what cases a distresse is lawfully, see q. the new termes of law. The Civilians call it (pignorum captionem) Bractonius de verbor. sign. lib. 14. This compulsion is by q. Britton cap. 71. divided into a distresse personall, and distresse real: distresse personall, is made by surprizing a mans moveable goods, and detaining them for the security of his appearance to the suite, and to make him plaintiffe. A distresse real, is made upon immovable goods, as the Grand cape, and petit cape, and thus it is interpreted by q. Hotoman, de verb. feudal: verbo Distressio. This distresseth from an attachment in this point (among others) that a distresse cannot be taken by any common person, without the compasse of his owne fee. q. Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 904. except it be presently after the cattell or other thing is driven, or borne out of the ground by him that perceiveth it to be in danger to be distressed. - nu. 5. & Zasius in his 16. counsell. nu. 47. Distresse in the former signification is divided first into finite, and infinite. Finite is that which is limited by law, how often it shall be made to bring the party to trial of the action, as once or twice q. Old nat. br. fol. 43. Distresse infinite is without limitation until the parties come: as against a Jury, that refuseth to appear, super certificatione Assise, the proceffe is a (Venire facias) habeas corpora and distresse infinite q. Old nat. br. fol. 113. Then it is divided into a grand distresse q. anno 52. H. 3. cap. 7. which Fitzherbert calleth in latine magnam districtionem, nat. br. fol. 126. and an ordinary distresse. A grand distresse is that, which is made of all the goods and cattels, that the party hath within the County q. Britton. cap. 26. fol. 52. But see whether it be sometime not all one with a distresse infinite. Idem fol. 80. With whom also the statute of marlbridge seemeth to agree. q. Anno 52. H. 3. cap. 7. & cap. 9. & cap. 12. See q. Old nat. br. fol. 71. 6. See grand distresse what things be distreineable, and for what causes. See the q. New termes of law Verbo Distresse. of this also see more in Attachment.

game of Ladies, either because it is a game, whereat Ladies and Gentle-women use to play, as being not so hard and difficult as chess, which is therefore a more manly game: or because the Ladie or Queene, as they call it, or as we terme it the King, hath in this game the greatest authoritie, rule and power going either backward or forward, as occasion serves. Et quia de lusum scac-cio, seu lusum latrunculorum fallax est mentio, pauca hic subijciam de eius inventione, praestantia, & forma, quae alibi sunt ommissa: refert q. Polidorus Virgil: lib. 2. de invent: rerum cap: 13. inventum fuisse lusum latrunculorum, circa annum mundi conditi 1635. à Xerxe, vel Xerxe viro quo-dam sapientissimo, qui tyranni cuiusdam effrenatam insolentiam belluinam crudelitatem, effrenamque tyrannidem compescere cupiens, novis hoc invento docuit maiestatem, potestatemque regiam sine subditorum ope, amore & auxilio facile labefactari, & quasi mole sua ruere nisi subditi ferant suppetias, aperit enim hoc lusum demonstratur, quot vñtque insidie Regi tenduntur, quas vitare nunquam potest sine ope suorum, ab illis enim deseruit ad summas illius angustias redigitur, & demum opprimitur. Est etiam hic lusum Politias seu Republicae bene constitutae typus, reique militaris forma exquisitissima: sicut enim in bene ordinata republ: varij sunt gradus, & ordines, ut Rex, Magnates, Nobiles, homines Equestres, denique mechanici, vni-versaque plebs: ita etiam in hac republica scilicet, seu lusoria. At quam apposite rem militarem adumbrat paucis videamus: procedunt igitur in campum reges duo, pugnant autem tanquam pro aris & focis, illisque adstant reginae dux, ut magis accendant languentes & deficientes regum animos, ipsi enim pro viribus suis belligerant, dum aut pro regis sui salute vtriusque acerrime propugn-ant, aut irruunt in inimicum oppugnat. Campus ubi consistunt est ipse aluco-& profficiunt ne hostis à tergo Regem adoriat. * The play of chess is verie ancient, being invented about the 1635. yeare of the world according to the opinion of Polidore Virgil: by a wife, and politique man, whose name was Xerxes or Xerxes, who the more to restraine and bridle the outrageous crudelty, and savage tyrannie of a certaine tyranne, invented this play, shew-ing thereby that Maicstie, and supreme authoritie, and rule of Kings and Princes, without the loue, aide and assistance of their subiects is but of small force: for in this play wee see how many treacheries are wrought against the King, and how subiect he is to every ones checke, vñtess his royall person be guard d by his subiects. This play also is a type and modell of a well ordered commonwealth, for as in a state politique which is well governed, there are diuers degrees, and orders of personages, one subiect vñto another, and all to the higher power, whom they seeke all ioyntly to defend, so in this play there is the King, or Monarch, the Nobilitie, the Clergie, the gentrie and commonaltie: it is also a perfect platforme of militare discipline, the two Kings, like to great Monarches incamped one against the other, the field pitched is the chiefe boord, the checkers are like so many tents, or pavilions, the men on each side the two armies, wherein the Kings are personally present with their Queenes, as they now fought for life, honor, crowne and all, each Queene on either side like Pallas goddess of battaile, in presence ready to succor her King, and thereby the more to incite and stir up the soul-diers: now for battaile array and order of the field, it is there also set downe. in the vauntguard, or forefront of the battaile, are placed the footemen or pavnes, and those strongly back'd by the troupes of horsemen, or knights, after which follow the Bishops, both attending the King and Queenes person, and encouraging the souldiers. In the reereward are placed the Rookes, which like valiant captaines, if all the rest faile, are ready to succor the King:

these keepe their squadrons and march from corner to corner in time of extrem danger, they change places and enconce the King, and oppose themselves to the force of the enimie, for the King himselfe goeth but seldom into the field to fight in person, but is alwayes defended by others.

The manner of creating Earles is by girding them with a sword, q. Cambden, pag: 107. but see the solemnity thereof described more at large in Stowes annales p. 1121. The occasion why these Earles in later time have had no sway over the County, whereof they beare their name, is not absurdly signified in Sir Thomas Smith. lib. 2. cap: 14. where he saith, that the Shyreue is called Vicecomes, as (Vicarius Comitis) following all matters of Iustice, as the Earle should doe: and that because the Earle is mozt commonly attendant upon the King in his warres or otherwise. So that it seemeth that Earles by reason of their High employments, being not able to follow also the businesse of the County, were delivered of all that burthen, and onely enjoyed the honour, as now they doe. And the Shyreue, though he be still called vicecomes, yet all he doth is immediately under the King and not under the Earle. monly taken for Hercules, who in the globe is figured with his right knee bent in the manner of kneeling, & with his left foot treading part of the head of the Dragon. L. Engonasi, engounasi. Gr. ἐγγονασί, ab ἐν, i. in, & γόνυ, i. genu, so called because he kneeleth with one knee, whence also the Latines call him Ingeniculum, quia videtur ingeniculari, i. in genua procumbere, to kneele. Dicitur etiam Nixus, à niti, i. laborare, for he seemeth as it were to labour, and take great paines, one knee bending much after the maner of a labouring man, as he is elegantly described by Arat:

hostis. Angli deduxerunt *feend, i. Diabolus, cæcodæmon, spiritus malus, communis humani generis adversarius. Quem idem Græci vocant ἀντίδικον, i. adversarium. Heb: יָשָׁן Satan, à יָשָׁן Satan, adversarius fuit, Sata-nico odio se alicui opposuit, from the Sax: word viend, and the German word feind, signifying an enemy or adversarie is derived from our English word teend, which signifieth a foule, euill and vncleane spirit, the common enemy of all mankind, whom therefore the Greekes call ἀντίδικον, i. aduer-sarie, and the Hebrewes Satan, which is as much as hater. Gr. πολεμῶ, à *Feend vnde.

πολεμῶ, i. bellum. ἐχθρῶς, ab ἐχθρῶ, i. odium, inimicitia, qua vox deduci posse videtur, ἀπό τῆς ἐχθρῆς, i. hærere: ut sit odium quod animo infixum hæret. Nam & odium à Cicerone definitur ira inveterata. Heb: אֶבְיָה ab אֶבְיָה ab אֶבְיָה, inimicitia est, inimicitia exercuit, infestavit.
& Auen: אֶבְיָה, à אֶבְיָה, i. angustia, in angustias redegit: it signifieth such an enemy properly as endeavoureth by all means to bring one into streights.

leicht, i. lumen. Vi. to Illuminate.

3765 Enormitie. G. Enormité. I. Enormità. H. Enormidad. P. Enor-midade. L. Enormitas, ab enormis. Gr. ἀνὸρμος, ab ἀνὰ particula privativa, & ὀρμος, i. mensura, q. defectus mensura, ἀνὸρμος, ab ἀνὸρμος, i. exlex, à ὀρμος, i. lex. Lex enim est norma, & canon: & deviatio seu declinatio à lege est enormitas quedam. T. Unmassigkeit. B. Dmarricheit, ab Dmarrich, i. enormis.

3766 *Enosch, filius Seth, ut constat & Genesios quarto, à vite mi-serijs & ærumnis nomen traxit, וְיָנֹאֵשׁ Anasch enim verbum doloris est, & significat ægrotare, morbo desperato laborare, hinc וְיָנֹאֵשׁ Enosch, & omnem etiam hominem significat respice miserum, mortalem & brevis aui, va-rijsque subiectum calamitatibus, verè ut cum Poeta dicamus, Eheu nos miseros quam totus homuncio nil est.

Ab Enosch fit B. T. Ensch, i. homo, quasi ensch. & Guich.

3767 Enough. B. Shenoech, Shenoech. T. Genug, Enug, forte ab Heb: שָׁנֹאֵשׁ gnanagh, i. delectari, oblectari: quia in satietate est oblectatio & Helwig: vel à שָׁנֹאֵשׁ, i. voluptas, lætitia, iactantia, lætor, propter eandem ra-tionem. Vel denique à Gr. ἔγωγε, sufficiens. & Lazius. G. Affez. I. Affez.
H. Affez, a bastança, harto, à satis, q. satum, i. accumulatum, acervu-tum. P. Affez, à L. Sat, vel satis. & Sebastian: de Cobarrui: Satis autem à verbo satio, Vel vi (q. Scalig: placet) vox est & nota mediocritatis, sumpta ab Agricolis post sementem factam, perinde ac si dicant: satis frugibus non est vitæ laborandum. Sat idem. Gr. ἄλγος, fit ὅτι ἄλγος, i. mari, repositi ἐν τῷ ἀπὸ τοῦ ἔργου, i. in quo est abundantia aquæ, inde pro omni satietate, & copia. & Etyim: Heb: שָׁנֹאֵשׁ dai, quod sufficientem significat, & hinc Lat: Deus qui est ἀνὸρμος, i. sibi soli sufficiens, imò ipsa sufficiencia opis haud indiga nostræ, qui eadem de causa Heb: שָׁנֹאֵשׁ schaddai appellatur. שָׁנֹאֵשׁ hon. & Pagni vnde Br. Digon.

b *Enough. T. Esst genug. B. Het is ghe-noegh. G. Il suffit.

ficat, quod satisfacit. H. T. Basta. P. Basta, corruptè pro bien est, i. bene stat, bene est, bene se res habet & Sebastian: de Cobarrui: vel à Lat: vastus, i. valde magnus, immensus & Anton: Nebrissen. I. verso in B quod frequens est. Non inepte etiam deduci potest basta à verbo Græco βαστάω, i. ferre, portare, haulare, ut illud sit quo nemo potest amplius, βαστάω, i. portare, so much as one can well beare and no more. Græ. ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ, ab ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ, suf-ficio.

3768 Enquest (Inquisitio) is all one with the French word, and all one in signification both with the French and Latin. Howbeit, it is especially taken for that Inquisition, that neither the Romanes, nor French men ever had use of, that I can learne. And that is the Enquest of Iurors, or by Iurie, which is the most vsual trial of all causes both ciuill and criminall in our Realme. For in causes ciuill after proofe is made of either side, so much as each partie thinketh good for himselfe, if the doubt be in the fact, it is referred to the discretion of twelue indifferent men empanelled by the Shyreue for the purpose: and as they bring in their verdict, so iudgement passeth. For the Iudge saith, the Iurie findes the fact thus: then is the Law thus: and so we Iudge. For the enquest in causes criminall, See Iurie, and see S. Tho: Smith de Repub: Angl: lib: 2. cap: 19. An enquest is either of office, or as the misse of the partie. Stawns: pl. cor: lib: 3. cap: 11.

3769 to Enquite. G. Enquerir. Vi. to Inquire.

3770 to Enrage, or make angry. G. Enragér. I. Arrabbiare. H. Arra-biar. P. Ragnar. L. Rabire, à rabie, Enrager, à Furer. T. Colen machen, à turb, i. rabiosus. Græ. λυωσώ, à λυω, i. rabies. Vi. etym: in Rage. Br: i. didigio.

b Enraged, mad, frantick. G. Enragé. I. Arrabbiato. H. Arrabido. L.
Furore pereitus. Græ. λυωσώ, à λυω, i. infamia, rabies. Vide Wjand and Franticke.

3771 to Enrich or makerich. G. Enrichir, à riche, i. diues, hinc autè ab Heb: רִיכּ richsch, i. diuitia, substantia, opes. & Nicod. Vi. in Rich, and Richelle. I. Arrichire. H. P. enriquecer. B. Wjerricken, à rick, i. diues. T. Rich-machen, i. diuitem facere. L. Locupletare, quasi locu-pletum facere. Locuples autem q. loci, i. agri plenus: agri enim teste & Plinio, loci dicti sunt. Sic Græ. ἄγρῳ, & agrum & locum significat.

Ditare,

Ditäre, à Dite, i. Pluto diuitiarum Deo, secundum poetam. Opulentäre, ab opulentus. Græc. μακρὸς, à μακρῶς, i. diuitiz. Hebr. עשיר hegnefchir, à עשיר gnafehar, i. diues fuit, ditatus est, locupletatus est. Br. i. gnaethog.

3772 to Entroll or register. G. enrollér, & enrôler, à rouler vel roole, i. catalogus. Vi. to Register.

3773 an Ensample, or Example. G. Exemple. I. Effempio. L. Exemplum. Vi. an Example.

3774-1 to Entonce. T. Uer schantzen. B. eschantzen, à schantse, i. Vallum castruense, sepimentum militare. Vi. to Entrench, and to Trench or make a Trench about.

3774-2 an Enseigne or banner. G. Enseigne. P. Enfeña. I. Insegna. H. Enfeña, Insigne. L. Insigne, vox Lat: latius patet quam Gallica, ut obseruauit Nicod: enseigne enim Gallis proprie notam aut signum aliquod significat quo res aliqua denotatur, insignia autem Lat: aliud est. Sunt qui putant enseigne appellatum à Lat: insignia in plurali ut enim insignia familiam illorum ostendunt, qui ea gestant: sic signum, seu vexillum ducem suum militibus notat. Some will haue this French word Enseigne which signifieth a Standart, ensigne, or Banner, to be deriued from the Latine word insignia, which signifieth armes of Noble-men or Gentle-men which giue any coate, for as these armes doe shew the difference of Houses and those that beare them are known to what house they belong: So the Standart, Enseigne or Banner, is a note to the souldiers to what Capitaine they appertaine, ¶ Nicod: apud quem vide plura. Vi. etiam a Banner.

Enseigne.

Enseigne-bearer.

b an Enseigne-bearer. G. port-enseigne, i. portans insigne, porteguidon à portér, i. gestare, portare, ferre, & guidon, i. Vexillum, insigne, quod Hispani: Guion, i. vexillum: ita autem appellatur, à Guir, i. dirigere, ducere, conducere, ducit enim vexillum totum exercitum, eoque stante, stat exercitus, procedente uero procedit, Guion takeh the name from guiar which signifieth to guide or direct: because the guidon or standerd leadeth and guideth the whole Army, when that standeth still, the Army staeth, and when that goeth forward, the Army marcheth. H. P. Alferez, alferes, nomen est Arabicum, à verbo ferese, quod significat equitem esse addito al articulo Arabico, equites enim & non gregarij milites huius officio, & ministerio assignari solent, ¶ Sebastian: de Cobarrui: quod autem dicitur ferese significare, equitem esse, illud confirmat lingua Hebraea. Hebr. enim פָּרָשׁ parash est eques, dictus à pungendo calcariibus equum. Hinc Arab: Perese, & Hisp: Alferez. I. Alfere, vel ab Hispan: vel construct: à Lat: aquilifer: olim enim aquila præcipue figuram in vexillis depictam gestare solabant, sic Romanorum signa aquilam habuerunt in medio depictam, Banderaro, Banderale: à bandiera, i. insigne, vexillum, Stendariero: à stendardo, i. insigne, vexillum. B. Maen-digh, baen-dagher, à baen, i. vexillum, & dagher, i. gestare. T. fanchich, à fanchin, i. vexillum, & richen, i. regere, ordinare, Paner-herr, q. vexilli heros, vel dominus Paner-meyster, i. vexilli magister. L. Signifer, à ferendo signo, hoc est, vexillo nomen habet, vexillarius, ij, m, qui vexillum gestat. Vexillifer, à ferendo vexillo, aquilifer, qui aquilam fert, imaginifer, qui imperatoris imaginem in vexillo portat. Cantabarius, qui cantabrum, cantabrum aliaue signa fert, ut exponit ¶ Kilian: Gr. οὐρανοφόρος, οὐρανοφόρος, i. vexillum, insigne, & φέρω, i. fero, gesto.

c Enigne or enseigne. Vi. Enseigne.

3775 to Entall. G. Installer, & I. Instalaré, à Gr. ἐνστέλλειν, i. mittere, ponere, ornare, quasi in throno dignitatis & honoris ponere, mittere, collocare, & stola ornare. Vi. to Instal, & Intzone.

3776 to Entue or follow. G. Ensuire, en en, i. in, & suire, i. sequi. I. Seguire, Seguitare, à Lat: sequi, Vi. to Follow, or Pursue.

b to Entnare, or bring into a snare. Vi. to Snare.

3777 to Entangle, or chsnare, quasi inter angulos aliquem ducere, ex quibus se expedire nequit. G. Embrouiller, Entrebrouiller, à brouiller, i. mittere, permiscere, confundere. Entreller, quasi tortilem facere, vel intertorquere. Embarrasser, Enlacer. P. Embarrasar. H. Embarrasar, Enbarasar, quasi Enbrasar, à braso, i. brachium, ac si dicas, brachio prohibere, & summonere. ¶ Sebastian: de Cobarrui: Enlazar, Enlazar, à lizo, i. laqueus, quasi in laqueos conijcere, in laqueos inducere. I. Inuoluppare, Inuoluppare. & G. Enuolopér, q. uelo operire seu uelo inuolueri & implicare. I. etiam Intricare. L. Intricare, à trici: trici autem sunt capilli quidam qui pullos gallinaceos inuolunt, & pedibus implicati impediunt, dictæ quasi velæ, i. capilli. ¶ Non: Trice significat any impediment or hinderance, but properly certaine haire or threads, with which the feet of chicken are spanned or bound, and from thence translated to any impediment. Irretire, quasi retibus implicare, ab in & rete. Implicare, ab in & plico, as, to fold. Gr. ἐνπλέω, ab ἐν, i. in, & πλέω, i. plico. ἐνπλέω, idem. Hebr. חַבַּק chabak, à Pagnin: כַּבַּח sabach. חַבַּק chabak, Vi. to Snare.

3778 to Entaille or engraine, à G. Entailler. I. Inagiliare. H. Entallár. P. Entetallar. Vi. to Engraine.

b an Entailer or engrainer. G. Entaillleur. I. Inagiliatore. H. Entallador. P. Entetallador. Vi. an Engrainer.

3779 to Entaille (feudum talliatum) cometh of the French entaillé, i. inscissus, and in our common Law is a substantive abstract, signifying fee taile, or fee intailed. Littleton in the second Chapter of his booke draweth fee taile from the uerbo Talliare, which must come from the French tailler, i. scindere, secare. And the reason is manifest, because fee taile in the Law is nothing but fee abridged, scantied, or curtailed (as you would say) or limited and tied to certaine conditions. Taille in France is metaphorically taken for a tribute or subsidue. Vi. Lupanum de Magistratibus Francorum, lib. 3. cap. Talea. Vi. fæ. & Caple.

3780 to Entendement, cometh of the French Entendement, i. intellectus, ingenium. It significeth in our Common Law so much as the true meaning or signification of a word or sentence. See of this ¶ Kitchin fol: 224.

k Entrepleder (Interplacitare) is compounded of two French words, entre, i. inter, and pleder, i. disputare: and it significeth in our Common Law as much as cognitio præiudicialis in the Ciuill Law: that is, the discussing of a point incidently falling out, before the principall cause can take end. For example: two severall persons being found heires to land by two severall offices in one Countie, the King is brought in doubt to whether liuerie ought to be made: and therefore before liuerie be made to either, they must enterpleade, that is, formerly trie betweene themselves who is the right heire. ¶ Stayn: prærog: cap: 19. See more examples in Brooke, Titulo Enterpleder.

Vi. Entrance.

b an Entrie (Ingressus) cometh of the French (Entrée, i. introitus, ingressus, aditus) and properly signifieth in our Common Law, the taking possession of lands or Tenements. See q. Plovdén Affile of ffish-force in London, fol: 93. b. It is also used for a Writ of possession: for the which see Ingressus: And read West also parte: 2. Symbol: titulo Recoveries, sect: 2. & 3. who there sheweth for what things it lieth, and for what it lieth not.

3799 Entrusion (Intrusio) in our common law signifieth a violent or unlawful entrance into Lands or Tenements, bring viterly void of a possessor, by him that hath no right nor sparke of right vnto them, q. Bracton lib: 4. cap: 2. For example, if a man step in vpon any Lands, the owner whereof lately died, and the right Heire neither by himself, nor by others, as yet hath taken possession of them. What the difference is betwene Abatour and Intruder, I doe not well perceive, except an Abatour be he, that steppeth into land void by the death of a Tenant for terme of life or yeares. See q. Fitz: nat: br: fol: 203. F. The author of the new Termes of Law would have abatement latined (Interpositionem, aut introitionem per interpolationem) and to be restrained to him that entreteth before the Heire, after the decease of a Tenant for life, though the new booke of Entries fol: 63. C. and 205. D. and 519. C. by his confession doth latine (Abatement) by this word (Intrusionem.) See Abatement. See Dissolui. See q. Britton cap: 65. Entrusion is also taken for the Writ brought against an Intruder, which see in q. Fitz: nat: br: fol: 203.

b Entrudon de gard is a Writ that lieth where the Infant within age entred into his lands, and holdeth his Lord out: for in this case the Lord shall not have the Writ (De communic custodia.) But this, Old: nat: br: fol: 90.

3813 an Epicure. G. Epicure, Epicurién. I. H.P. Epicuro. B. T. Ein Epicurer. Br. Epikyr. L. Epicurus, i. Gr. Ἐπίκουρος. Ab Epicuro huius sectæ auctore nomen habet, qui summum bonum in voluptate ponebat, non tamen in voluptate corporis, quemadmodum Aristippus, sed in voluptate animi, hoc est, in absentia dolorum omnium. Dialécticam damnauit, quod Philosophiam simplicibus affirmaret posse comprehendere. Deorum providentiam à rebus humanis tollebat. Huius Lucretius tantum tribuit, vt non dubitet affirmare, Epicurum reliquorum omnium Philosophorum lumen obscurasse, quemadmodum Sol suo splendore aliorum celsitum corporum claritatem obtinebat. Traditur fuisse continentissimæ vitæ: nomen tamen illud voluptatis, in qua summum bonum ponebat, effecit, vt ab eo homines valè pueri Epicurei dicantur.

Epigastrium. Gr. ἐπιγαστήριον, ab ἐπὶ, i. in, super, & γαστήρ, i. venter, quasi superuentrale, the outward and uppermost part of the bellie.
- * Epiglottis. 3817 * the Epiglottis, the cover or weasell of the throat, the flappe or little tongue, which by closing the amplitude of the Larynx, and the way of the rough arterie, suffereth no meat or drinke to slippe downe into the inner capacite thereof, and so to fall into the lungs. G. Epiglottide. I. P. Epiglottis. H. Epiglottis. L. Epiglottis, Epiglottis. Gr. ἐπιγλωττίς, ἐπιγλωττίς, ἀ γλωττίς, vel γλωττίς, i. lingua. Vel quod sit instar linguae: unde à Lat: dicitur lingua, seu ligula, & à Q. Plinio, lingua minor: vel quod ad linguae radicem sita sit. So called either because it is like unto a little tongue, or because it is placed at the root of the tongue.
- * Epigramme. 3818 * an Epigramme. G. Epigramme. H. P. Epigramma. I. L. Epigramma. Gr. ἐπίγραμμα, ab ἐπὶ γράφω, i. super scribo, ab ἐπὶ, i. super, & γράφω, i. scribo. T. Überschrift. B. Überschrift, ab überschreiben, i. super scribere, ex op, i. super, & schreiben, i. scribere. Hodierna lingua dicitur epigramma, quia per omnia epigrammata dicuntur.
- * Epigrammatic. G. Epigrammaticus. I. H. P. Epigrammaticus. L. Epigrammaticus. Gr. ἐπιγραμματικός, ab ἐπίγραμμα, i. epigramma, & γράφω, i. scribo. Br. Tyrrine aveth.
- * Epilepsie. 3819 * the Epilepsie, fowle emill, or falling sickness. G. Epilepsie. H. P. Epilepsia. I. Epilepsia. L. Epilepsia. Gr. ἐπιληψία, ab ἐπὶ λαμβάνω, i. apprehendo, apprehendo, occupo: est enim convulsio quaedam totum corpus occupans, cum mens sensumque oblescit: a strong and violent convulsion of the bodie, which taketh hold both of minde and sense together.
- * Epilogue. 3820 an Epilogue. G. Epilogue. I. H. P. Epilogus. L. Epilogus. Gr. Ἐπὶλογος, ex ἐπὶ, i. ad, & λόγος, i. sermo: q. sermone dicitur quo tota clauditur oratio: est namque postrema orationis pars. T. Beschlus. B. Beschlus, a besluyten, i. claudere, & rede, i. loquela, oratio. Br. penultima ad divedit.
- * Epiphanie. 3821 the Epiphanie, or twelfth day. G. Epiphanie, Apparition, Le jour des trois roys. I. Epiphania, Il giorno de tre re. H. P. Epiphania, o epiphania el dia de los tres reyes. L. Epiphania. Gr. ἐπιφάνεια, ἐπιφάνεια, ab ἐπὶ φαίνω, i. appareo, ab ἐπὶ, i. ad, super, & φαίνω, i. appareo. Apud Christianos Græcos Theologos peculiariter sic dictus fuit dies quo apparuit Christus Servator noster in carne: alij diem intelligunt in quo celebratur memoria Baptismi Christi tricesimo post natiuitatem anno, quem in hunc incidisse perhibent, in quo voce cælestis demissa, apparuit Servator mundi, hic est filius meus in quo acquiesci. q. Matthi: 3. vers: 17. Vel quod hoc die indicio sideris Magis ab oriente profectus apparuit, ut legitur q. Matthi: 2. Vel quod hoc die aquam in vinum commutavit, unde etiam eius deitas apparuit. Hinc est quod canit Ecclesia, Hodie celestis sponsio iuncta est Ecclesia, Quam in Iordane Christus nostra lauit crimina, Currunt cum muneribus Magi: ad regales nuptias Ex aqua vino facto letantur conuiuia, &c.
- Alij tamen duplicem tantum ab Ecclesia Epiphaniam volunt intelligi. Sic q. Fung: Fuit (inquit) hæc Christi apparitio seu epiphania duplex: una qua indicio sideris Magis apparuit; altera qua natus fuit, Pastoribus (Angelis nuntiante) apparet, ut ex Isidoro docet idem q. Fung: There was a double apparition or epiphany, as q. Isidore sheweth: one when the starre appeared in the East unto the Magi, or wise men, who by the conduct and guiding thereof came to worship the Saviour of the world, whose birth by that starre was declared, q. Matthi: 2. another when by the manifestation of the Angels he appeared unto the Shepherds, as wee finde it q. Luke the second. Alij tamen quartam addunt rationem quare dicatur Epiphania, quod hoc etiam die quinque milia hominum satiavit quinque panibus, in quo etiam eius diuinitas clare apparuit. Dicitur etiam Græce ἡ ἐπιφάνεια τῶν πάντων ἱερῶν, i. sacra luminum feria, eo quod hoc die candelas accendant totidem, quæ fuerint Magi, qui mos passim multis in locis observatur, ut docet q. Iun: L. etiam Regalia, Festum Regum, sunt enim qui Magos Reges fuisse existimant. B. Wijn koninghen dagh, koninghen dagh. T. Wey könige tag, i. trium regum dies.
- * Epiphonema. 3822 * Epiphonema, a figure. G. Epiphonema. I. H. P. Epiphonema, aut Epiphonema. L. Epiphonema. Gr. ἐπιφώνημα, ab ἐπιφώνω, i. acclamo, ab ἐπὶ, i. ad, & φωνέω, i. voco, clamo, a φωνή, i. vox. Est rei narratae aut probate summa acclamatio: quæ si commodè accipitur, multum habet aculeorum. Narrationi accipitur illud q. Maronis: Tante molis erat Romanam condere gentem. Probate rei, ut illud q. M. Tullij: Quorum igitur impunitas Cæsar, tue clementie laus est, eorum te ipsorum ad crudelitatem acuet oratio.
- * Epistle quid. 3823 an Epistle. G. Epistle, f. I. H. P. L. Epistola. Gr. ἐπιστολή, q. missoriam seu missivam dicas, ab ἐπὶ, i. ad, & στέλλω, i. mitto. B. Brief, Send-brief. T. Brief, Sendbrief, a senden, i. mittere, & brief, i. literæ, ærum, a breuitate nomen habere videtur. Hebr: פתקא iggereth, ab פתק agar, i. congregare, quod in eam multa verba colligantur. q. Pagni: Vel quod in ea multi sunt tractus linearum. Vel denique quod in ea literæ & lineæ multe congerantur, ab פתק agar, i. congregat. q. Auen: Br. l'hyr, nebystil. Vi. Letter.

- * Epithalamium. 3825 * an Epithalamium, a bridal song, a song at a wedding in commendation of the parie married, such was that of Salomon, Psalm: 45. wherein the praise of the Church, and her spiritual marriage and union with Christ is set downe. Such also is that of Stella in Statius, and of Julia in Catullus. &c. G. Epithalame. I. H. P. Epithalamio. L. Epithalamium, ab ἐπὶ, i. ad, & θάλαμος, i. thalamus, cubiculum sponsi & sponsæ, decantari enim solebat ad thalamum: so called from the Greeke word thalamus, which significeth a bed chamber, and more particularly and properly the chamber of man & wife, or the bride chamber, because this song was vs'd to be sung at the doore of the bride-chamber, when the bride bedded. There are two kinds of Epithalamiums, the one vs'd to be sung at night, when the married couple entered into bed, the other in the morning, as a raising vp of them. Gr. ἐπιθάλμιος, ὁ λόγος, ὁ ἐπιθάλμιος, ὁ λόγος, i. nuptiar, solebat enim in nuptijs decantari.
- * Epithet. 3826 an Epithet. G. Epithete. I. H. P. Epitheto. L. Epitheton. Græ: ἐπίθετον, ab ἐπιτίθημι, ἵσθαι, ὅτι ἐπὶ, i. ad, & τίθημι, i. pono, q. appositum, adiectum. Est dictio proprio nomini appositæ, aut ornandi, aut vituperandi, aut indicandi causâ: aut denique emphaticos gratiâ. Vt, Dia Camilla, scelerumque inventor Vlisses, Aeterna virtus, turpe vitium. The word epithet properly significeth the addition of a word which tendeth either to praise, or dispraise, or to the adorning of the speech, to which it is added, or else importeth a singular emphasis, energie, or force, as eternall vertue, fowle vice &c.

- 3872 * the Esseni. I. Esseni. H. los essénos. L. Esseni, vel Essai. Genus * Esseni. Sectariorum apud Iudæos, de quibus sic Iosephus: Esseni omnia affirmant fæto subiecta, omniaque fieri eius decreto, animam hominis immortalem esse, & pro iustitia pugnamum usque ad mortem, nulla sacrificia cum populo celebrant, imò a cetera hominum reliquorum se continebant peculiari quadam sanctimoniam presumptione, qui studio omni terram colebant, & exercebant, opes etiam suas in usum communem conferebant, nec seruos habentes, nec possidentes uxores, atque ad a Monasticam quandam vitam ducentes, lapidum, herbarum, ac animalium naturam valde studiose inquirentes, apud quos potandi, edendique modus olim saturitate desinebatur, &c. The Esseni were certain Sectaries or Philosophers among the Hebrewes, which referred every thing to desinie, that deems the soule to be immortal, that would haue men fight untill death in defense of Iustice, that sacrifice not with the rest of the people, or scarce converse with them, much given to tillage and husbandrie, and highly prizing purity of life, and sanctitie of conversation, who live in common, and neuer marry, and keepe no seruants, saying that seruants are wicked, and a wise cause of discord: their life is monastike, and themselves giuen much to contemplation of the nature of herbes, plants, stones, and beasts: in diet, meat and drinke, moderated by saturitie, much addicted to morall philosophie, not caring for wealth, or hoarding up treasure, as Iosephus and q. Philo have reported. De nominis origine varia sunt & diuersæ autorum opiniones: quidam a verbo עָשָׂה gnafah, i. fecit, dici volunt, vi. Esseni sunt quasi operarii, q. Fung: sed nulla plane probabilitate: alij a Syr: עֵשָׂה alai, i. sanasti: עֵשָׂה esse, i. medicus: medicos enim fuisse eos studiosos patet ex supradictis, id est: etiam vocatos fuisse eos דיִקְטוֹרֵס, a דיִקְטוֹר, i. curare, curam morbi suscipere, remedia morbo adhibere. q. Scalig: tamen in libro de emendatione temporum דיִקְטוֹרֵס appellatos esse dicit, quasi Dei cultores, vtrumque enim significat vox Græca דיִקְטוֹר, & deducit a Syriaco עֵשָׂה chali, quod sanctum significat, chali autem fit ab Hebr: עֵשָׂה chali, quod apud Hebrews celeberrimum fuit omnium pignorum nomen, atque hinc Esseni, siue Essai, & Halidzi, ut docet q. Drusius in libro de Halidziis, quem vide.
- 3873 * Essex, the name of a Countie or shire in England, so called, as it were, East-seax, because it was the Easterne habitation of the Saxons. q. Verste. * Essex. gan. Essexia nomen est Comitatus in Anglia, ita dicitur quasi East-seax, erat enim Orientalium Saxonum habitatio & sedes, ab East quid Orientem significat, & Seax, i. Saxo.
- 3874 to Esoine or excuse the person absent by an oath. G. Essoyner, Essoyner, Exoniér, a Gr. ἔξονος, i. cum iureiurando aliquid excusare, ab ἔξω, i. ex, & ὄνως, i. iuro. Est enim Exoniare iureiurando excusare eum qui iudicio non adest, aut euocatus praesto non est. q. Nicod: Hinc Exomano vulgus appellat vulnere aut mutilatione causari, qui de iudicio iure militiam possunt. q. Bud: Vi. to Excuse.
- b 10 Esoine (Esonium) commeth of the French Essoiné, or Exonnié, i. causarius miles, he that hath his presence forborne or excused upon any iust cause, as sickness, or other incombrance. It significeth in our Common Law, an allegement of an excuse for him that is summoned, or sought for to appeare, or answer to an action reall, or to performe suit to a Court Baron, upon iust cause of absence. It is as much as Excusatio with the Ciuilians: The causes to Esoine any man summoned, be diuers and infinite, yet drawn to five heads: whereof the first is (Vltimare) the second (De terra sancta) the third (De malo veniendi) which is also called the Common Esoine: the fourth is (De malo lecti) the fifth (De seruicio Regis.) For further knowledge of these I referre you to q. Glanville in his whole first booke, and q. Bract: lib: 5. tract: 2. per totum. and q. Britton ca. 222. 223. 224. 225. and to q. Hornes Mirrour of Iustices, li. 1. cap. des Essoinés, who makes mention of some more Essoinés, touching the seruice of the King Celestiall, then the rest doe, and of some other points not worthy to be knownen. c Exchange (excambium vel cambium) hath a peculiar signification Exchange. in our common Law, and is used for that compensation, which the warrantour must take to the warrant, valew for valew, if the land warranted be recovered from the warranters. q. Bracton: lib. 2. cap. 16. & lib. 1. cap. 19. It signifieth generally as much as (permutatio) with the Civilians, as the Kings exchange, anno H. 6. cap. 1. & 4. & ann. 9. Ed. 3. stat. 2. cap. 7. which is nothing else but the place appointed by the King for the exchange of bullion, be it gold or silver, or plate &c. with the Kings coine. These places have been divers heretofore, as appeareth by the said statutes. But now is there only one, viz: the tower of London, conveyed with the Mint, which in time past might not be as appeareth by ann. 1. Hen. 6. cap. 2.

3931 Excheator. Ps. Escheator.

3932-1 the Exchequer or Eschequer. Brit. Sieker. G. Eschequier, ab eschequer, i. latrumulorum tabella seu alveo, cui similis erat pictura tapetorum huius loci. Vel quod dicitur Lat: Schaccarium, quam vocem Smithus ducit a Schatz, Tent: vel a ret: Sax: Scats, i. thesaurus. G. etiam Thresorerie, ex thresor, i. thesaurus. Fisque, Fisc. I. H. P. Fisco, Scaccario. L. Fiscus, quia thesaurus continetur in corbibus illis, qua fisci nuncupantur. Quæstorium a questus, Princeps ærarium. Gr. ταμείον, a τάμειν, i. quæstor, præfectus, administrato. T. Gemeyn schatz. B. Gemeine schatz, i. communis thesaurus. Vi. & lege sequentia.

b Exchequer (Scaccarium) cometh of the French (Eschequier, i. Exchequer. abacus, tabula lusoria, a chess or checker bord) and signifieth the place or court of all receipts belonging to the crowne, and is so termed, as I take it by reason that in ancient times, the Accomptants in that office used such tables as Arithmeticians use for their calculations, for that is one signification of (Abacus) amongst others. Polidor: Virgil: lib. 9. histor: Angl: saith, that the true word in Latin is Scattarium, and by abuse called Scaccarium. In myne opinion it may well seeme to be taken from the Germane word (Schatz) signifying as much as (Thesaurus) treasure, or (fiscus) And from this fountaine (no doubt) springeth the Italian word (Zeccha) signifying a Mint: and Zeccherij alias Zeccherij the officers thereunto belonging. Def: cil: Genueu: 134. Mr. Cambden in his Britan: pag: 113. saith that this court or office took the name a tabula ad quam affidebant proving out of Geruarius Tilburienis, whose words you may read in him. This Court is taken from the Normans, as appeareth by the grand Customary cap: 56. where you may find the Eschequer thus described. The Eschequer is called an assembly of high Iusticiers, to whom it appertaineth to amend that which the Bailiffs and other meaner Iusticiers have euill done, and vnadvisedly indged: and to doe right to all men without delay, as from the Princes mouth. Skene de verbor: significatione: verbo Scaccarium hath out of Paulus Emilius these words: Scaccarium dicitur quasi statarium, quod homines ibi in lure sistunt, vel quod sit stataria & perennis Curia, nam cetera Curia essent ind: Clina, nec loco, nec tempore stare: where hee saith also of himselfe that in Scotland the Eschequer was stable, but the other Session was deambulatorie, before James the V. qui instituit statariam Curiam, cum antea esset indictua: He addeth farther: Others thinke that Scaccarium is so called a similitudine ludi Scaccorum, that is the play of the chesses: because many persons meet in the chequer, pleading their causes one against the other, as if they were fighting in an arrayed battaille: Others thinke, that it cometh from an old Saxon word (Scata) as writeth S: Tho: Smith, which signifieth treasure, taxations or impostes, whereof account is made in the chequer. This court consisteth as it were of two parts: whereof one is conuerlant especially in the hearing and deciding of all causes appertaining to the Princes coffers anciently called Scaccarium computorum, as Ockam testifieth in his lucubrations: the other is called the receipt of the Eschequer which is properly employed in the receiving and payment of money. Crompton in his Iurisdic: fol: 105. defineth it to be a court of record, wherein all causes touching the revenues of the crowne are handled. The officers belonging to both these you may find named in Mr. Cambdens Britan: ca: Tribunalia Angliz, to whom I refer you. The Kings Exchequer which now is seated in Westminster was in diuers countries of Wales, anno 27. H. 8. cap: 5. but especially cap: 26.

פאפ aph, i. facies, vultus, que vox per literarum mutationem fit phas, cui consonum pari vag. Unde facies ut quidam volunt. Vultus a velle, quia per vultum animi voluntas & motus ostenditur. Hinc Nonius * faciem in eo differre ait a vultu, quod is accipitur pro voluntate, que pro motu animi in facie ostenditur. Est itaque facies naturalis & certus & immutabilis oris habitus, vultus vero artificialis & varius, & secundum affectionem animi, modo tristis, modo lætus, unde dictum, quod facies facta sit, vultus fiat.
Et vers: Consistit facies, sed vultus saepe mutatur.

rum, argumentum non apparentium. B. ghelof. T. glaub. Sax: glone, seu ut olim loue, ab Heb: לבב labab, i. corde sapuit: hinc לבב lebab & לבב lebb, i. cor, mens, intellectus. Est etenim mentis actus per Spiritum Sanctum illustratus, fides, in oculos haud quaquam incurrens: sed in imo pectore sedem sibi figens. Alludit etiam ad פסח, i. libo, sacrificio, quod fidei argumentum est: hinc לוי פסח, i. libamentum, 2. ad לבן, i. fuor: Per fi-dem namque diuinis beneficijs fruimur, 3. ad פלגות, i. arduum ac difficile. Non enim vulgare negotium est fides (2. Thess. 3. ver. 21) nec ver-satur nisi circa ea, quae omnem excedunt humanae rationis ingenijque captum ac modum, 4. ad פלגות (per metaph.) i. beatitudo, felicitas an opum praesidio ful-sa: quia nempe beatos praestat fides. Tandem nescio an optima sit non hec tam allusio, quam Etymologia, quae suppetit ex Heb: פלגות lauah, quod significat mutuo accipere: q. Prout alma fides caelestia nobis mutuo communicat bona. Deinde significat adhaerere, sociari: quia sola fides nos Christo agglutinat atque associat, q. Heluig: Heb: אמנה omnah, אמנה emunah
i. aman, i. verax & fidelis fuit, tutatus est fideliter, emutritus bona fide, praesuit fideliter. Cognationem habet cum אמין jamin, i. dexter: nam dexteritas seu dextra manus non raro accipitur pro fidelitate. Est enim fidei consecrata, & per dexteram iurabant antiqua tanquam fidei sedem & virtutis ministrum. q. Auen: Gr. πίστις, a πιστὸς πιστός, quod per transpo-sit, radice, sit a πιστὸς tepas. Syriac: פסחא etespis, i. credidit, fidem adhibuit, persuasus est q. Guich: rationem, Vi. supra.

b Fealtie, Fidelitas, commeth of the French Feaulté, i. Fides, and signifieth in our Common Law an oath taken at the admittance of every tenant, to be true to the Lord of whom he holdeth his land. And he that holdeth land by this only oath of fealtie, holdeth in the freest manner that any man in England under the King may hold: because all with vs that have fee, hold per fidem & fiduciam, that is, by Fealtie at the least. q. Smith de Repub: c. 2. n. 4. And q. Marth: de Ass: decisi: 320. n. 4. f. 465. faith, that Fidelitas est substantiale feudi, non servitium. The particular of this oath, as it is used among the Feudists, you may reade well expressed by q. Zaf: de Feud: p. 7. n. 15. & 16. which is worth the comparing with the usual oath taken here in our part of Britannie. This Fealtie is also used in other nations, as the Lombards and Burgundians. q. Cassan: consuet: Burgund: f. 19. & 420. And indeed the very first creation of this tenure, it grew from the love of the Lord towards his followers, so did it binde the tenant to Fidelitie, as appeareth by the whole course of the Feods: and the breach thereof is losse of the Fee. q. Duar: de Feud: c. 14. n. 11. q. Wefemb: de Feud: c. 15. n. 4. cum seq: Cont: meth: Feud: tit: Quib: mod: Feud: amitt: q. Hotom: de verb: Feudal: sheweth a double Fealtie: one generall, to be performed by every subject to his Prince: the other speciall, unto their Landlord. This fealtie speciall is with vs performed either by Freeman, or by Villeines. The forme of both see q. Anno 14. Edw: 1. Stat: 2. in these words: When a Freeman shall doe fealtie to his Lord, he shall hold his right hand upon a booke, and shall say thus: Heare you, my Lord R. that I I.P. shall be to you both faithful and true, and shall owe my fealtie to you for the land that I hold of you, at the termes assigned: So helpe mee God and all his Saints. When a Villeine shall doe fealtie unto his Lord, he shall hold his right hand over the booke, and shall say thus: Heare you, my Lord A. that I B. from this day forth unto you shall be true and faithful, and shall owe you fealtie for the land that I hold of you in villenage, and shall be sufficed by you in body and goods.

Fealtie.

So helpe mee God and all his Saints. See the q. Register original, fol: 302. a.

4075 Fee, Feodum, aliis Feudum, commeth of the French Fief, i. præ-fee, Feodum, dium beneficiarum, vel res clientelaris, and is used in our Common Law Feudum, for all those lands which we hold by perpetual right, as q. Hotom: well neeth, verbo Feodum, de verb: feud: our ancient Lawyers either not observing from whence the word grew, or at least not sufficiently expressing their knowledge, what it signified among them, from whom they took it. Feudum, whence the word Fief or Fee commeth, signifieth in the German Language, beneficium cuius nomine opera quædam gratia testificandæ causa debentur. q. Hotom: disp: c. 1. And by this name goe all lands and tenements, that are held by any acknowledgement of any superioritie to a higher Lord. They that write of this subject doe divide all lands and tenements, wherein a man hath a perpetuall estate to him and his heires, into Allodium & Feudum: * Allodium is defined to be euery mans owne land, & c. which he possesseth merely in his owne right, without acknowledgement of any service, or payment of any rent unto any other: and this is a proprietie in the highest degree. And of some it is called Allodium, ab a priuati: & laudum vel laudatio, vt sit prædium cuius nullus auctor est nisi Deus. Est enim laudare, vel Nonio teste, nominare, quod & Bud: docuit ad l. Herenn. ff. her: instit: Prat: verbo Allodium. q. Hotom: in verb: feud: Feudum is that which we hold by the benefit of another, and in the name whereof we owe service, or pay rent, or both to a superiour Lord. And all our land here in England, the Crowne land (which is in the Kings owne hands in the the right of his Crowne) excepted, is in the nature of Feudum or Fee. For though many a man hath land by descent from his Ancestors, and many others have dearely bought land for their money, yet is the land of such nature, that it cannot come to any, either by descent or purchase, but with the burden that was laid upon him who had Nouell Fee, or first at all received it as a benefit from his Lord, to him and to all such, to whom it might descend or any way be conveyed from him. So that if wee will reckon with our host, as the Proverbe is, there is no man here that hath directum dominium, i. the very propriety or demaine in any land, but the Prince in the right of his owne Crowne. ¶ Cambd: Britan: fol: 91. For though he that hath Fee, hath Ius perpetuum, and vtile dominium, yet he oweth a dutie for it, and therefore is it not simply his owne. Which thing I take these words, that wee use for the expressing of our deepest right in any lands and tenements, to import: For he that can say most for his estate, saith thus: I am seised of this or that land or tenement in my demaine, as of Fee. Seisus inde in dominico meo ut de feudo: and that is as much as if he said, It is my demaine or proper land after a sort, because it is to me and mine heires for ever, yet not simply mine, because I hold it in the nature of a benefit from another. Fee is of two sorts: Fee absolute, otherwise called Fee simple; and Fee conditional, otherwise Fee taile. Fee simple, Feudum simplex, is that, whereof wee are seised in these generall words: To vs and our heires for ever. Fee taile, Feudum talliatum, is that whereof wee are seised to vs and our heires, with limitation, that is, the heires of our bodie. And Fee taile is either generall or speciall. Generall is, where land is given to a man and the heires of his body: the reason whereof is given by ¶ Littlet: c. 2. lib: 1. because a man seised of land by such a gift, if he marie one or more wiues, and have no issue by them, and at the length marry another, by whom he hath issue, this issue shall inherit the land. Fee taile speciall is that, where a man and his wife be seised of lands to them, and the heires of their two bodies: the reason is likewise given by Littleton in the same place, because in this case, the wife dying without issue, and hee marrying another by whom he hath issue, this issue cannot inherit the land, being specially given to such heires. This Fee taile hath the original from the Statute of Westm: 2. c. 1. which was made Ann. 13. Ed. 1. Yet see ¶ Bract: lib: 2. c. 5. n. 3. his verbis: Item, quædam absoluta & larga, & quædam stricta & coarctata, sicut certis heredibus. To whom addo ¶ Plowd: casu Willion: fol: 235. a. b. & seq: For before that Statute, all land given to a man and his heires, either generall or speciall, was accounted in the nature of Fee, and therefore held to be so firmly in him to whom it was given, that, any limitation notwithstanding, he might alienate and sell it as his pleasure, much like that which the Civilians call nudum præceptum, binding rather by way of counsell and advice, then compulsion or restraint. And this thing seeming unreasonable to the wisdom of our Realme, because so a man meaning well to this or that posteritie of himselfe or his friends, might be forthwith deceived of his intention, the said Statute was made for redresse of this inconuenience, whereby it is ordained, that if a man give lands in Fee, limiting the heires to whom it shall descend, with a reversion to himselfe or his heires for default, &c. that the forme and true meaning of his gift shall be observed. Wherefore in what conscience our Lawyers have invented meanes so easily to cut off this forme of gift, it is to be considered. Hee that hath Fee then, holdeth of an other by some dutie or other, which is called service: And of this service, and the diversitie thereof, see Chivalrie, and Service. He that will learne from what fountaine those Feuds or Fees did first spring, let him reade ¶ Anton: Contius de meth: feud: c. 1. where hee shall receive great light for his guide into so obscure a Dungeon. See Liege. This word Fee is sometime used with vs for the compasse or circuit of a Lordship or Manour. ¶ Bract: lib: 2. c. 5. in these words: In eadem villa & de eodem feudo. Thirdly, it is used for a perpetuall right incorporeall, as to have the keeping of Prisons in fee. ¶ Old nat: br: fo: 41. Foster in Fee, eod: fol: 6. Rent granted in Fee, ¶ Anno 28. Ed. 1. Stat: 3. c. 8. Lastly, Fee signifieth a reward or ordinarie dutie, that a man hath given him for the execution of his office, or the performance of his industrie in his arte or science: as the Lawyer or Physician is said to have his Fee, when he hath the consideration of his paines taken; the one with his Client, the other with his Patient.

b Fee expectant, is by the Feudists termed Feudum expectatium, or expectativa, substantively used. ¶ Mat: de Afflic: decis: 292. n. 2. f. 417. See Expectant.

c Fee ferme.

Fee ferme, Feudi firma, is a compound of Fee, whereof see Fee, and ferme, i. colonia, villa, prædium rusticum. Of ferme commeth Fermier du Prince, i. manseps, redemptor publicorum vectigalium, publicanus. Fee ferme signifieth in our Common Law, land held of another in Fee, that is, in perpetuallie to himselfe and his heires, for so much yeerely rent as is reasonably worth, more or lesse, so it be the fourth part of the Fee worth, old tenures. See Exposit: of the Statute of Gloucester, Anno 6. Edw. 1. without homage, fealtie, or other services, others then be especially comprised in the feoffment. But by Fitzh: it seemeth, that the third part of the value may be appointed for the rent, or the finding of a Chaplaine to sing divine Service, &c. Nat: br: fol: 210. c. And the nature of it is thus, that if the rent be behinde and unpaid for the space of two yeeres, then the feoffour or his heires have action to recover the lands as their demesnes. ¶ Brit: c. 66. n. 4. But observe out of ¶ West: symbol: p. 1. lib: 2. sect: 463. that the feoffment may containe services and suit of Court, as well as rent. And the Author of the New termes of Law saith, that Fee ferme oweth fealtie, though not expressed in the feoffment, for that fealtie belongeth to all kinds of tenures. This is neere the nature of that, which among the Civilians is called ager vectigalis, qui in perpetuum licetur, i. hac lege, ut quamdiu pro eo vectigal pendatur, tamdiu neque ipsi qui conduxerunt, neque ipsi qui in locum eorum successerunt, auferri eum liceat. l. i. ff. We account any offence felony that is in Degree next unto petie treason, and compriseth divers particular vnder it, as murder, theft, killing of a mans selfe, sodometry, rape, wilfull burning of houses, and divers such like, which are to be gathered especially out of Statutes whereby many offences are daily made Felonie, that before were not. Felony is discerned from higher offences by this, that the punishment thereof is death. How be it, this is not perpetuall. For petit larcenie, which is the stealing of any thing vnder the valew of Twelue pence, is Felonie, as appeareth by q. Broke tit. Coron. n. 2. His reason is, because the indictment against such a one must runne with these words, felonice cepit, and yet is this not punished by death, though it be losse of goods. A man may call that Felonie, which is vnder petit treason, and punished by death: And of this there be two sorts, one higher, that for the first time may be releued by Cleargie, an other that may not. The cognition or knowing them is by Statutes. For Cleargie is allowed, where it is not expressly taken away. Of these matters reade, q. - c Fifteenth, decima quinta, is a tribute or imposition of money laid vpon every Citie, Borough, and other Towne through the Realme, not by the poll, or vpon this or that man, but in general vpon the whole citie or town: so called because it amounteth to one fifteenth part of that, which the citie or town hath been ralewed at of old. This is now a dayes imposed by Parliament, and euery towne thorough the Realme, great or lesse, knoweth what a fifteenth for themselves doth amount vnto, because it is perpetuall: whereas the subsidie, which is raised of euery particular mans lands or goods must needs be vncertaine, because the estate of euery seuerall man is so ticklish and vncertaine. And in that regard I thinke that this fifteenth is a rate anciently laid vpon euery towne, according to the land or circuit belonging vnto it. Cuius et meminit Camb: Britan: In stead of the rest take a few f. 168. of Wels in Sommer sethire, he writeth thus. Quo tempore vt testatur censuales Anglie liber, Episcopus ipsius oppidum tenuit, quod pro quinquaginta hidis geldabat. Et f. 171. of Bath: Geldabat pro viginti hidis, quando schira geldabat. Et f. 181. of old Sarisbury: pro quinquaginta hidis geldabat. And these rates were taken out of Doomes-day booke in the Eschequer, so that this seemed in old time to be a yearly tribute in certaintie, whereas now though the rate be certaintie, yet it is not leyed but by Parliament. Fine, Finis.

b fine, Finis, commeth of the French Fin: & Lat: Finis, vt ante, and hath divers applications in our Common Law, sometime being used for a for-mall or ceremonious Conveyance of Lands or Tenements, or as West, saith Tit: finis sect. 25. of any thing inheritable, being in esse, tempore fi-nis, to the end to cut off all controversies & West, part. 2. symb. sect. 1. de-finesh a fine in this signification: Covenants made before Justices and en-tered of Record. And out of q. Glanville thus lib. 8. cap. 1. Finis est amica-bilis compositio & finalis concordia, ex consensu & licentia Domini Re-gis, vel eius justiciariorum, & lib. 9. cap. 3. Talis concordia finalis dicitur, eo quod finem imponit negotio, adeo vt neutra pars litigantiu ab eo de cætero possit recedere. Et ex Bracton lib. 5. tract. 5. cap. 28. n. 7. * Finis ideo dicitur Finalis concordia, quia imponit finem litibus, & est exceptis peremptoria. The Author of the New Termes of Law, definesh it to bee a Final agreement, had betweene persons concerning any Land or Rent or other thing, wherof any suite or Writ is betweene them hanging in any Court. See the new booke of Entries verb: Fines: The fine is of so high a nature, that q. Bract: lib. 3. cap. 7. n. 3. hath these words of it: Item immediatè pertinet ad regem querela finis facta in curia Domini Regis & non obse-rvata. Et est ratio quia nemo potest Finem interpretari nisi ipso Rege, in cuius curia Fines fiunt. Vi. & anno 27. Edw. 1. stat. 1. cap. 1. The Cuili-ans would call this solenne contract, transactionem judicalem de re immo-bili, because it hath all the properties of a transaction, if it be considered in his originall use. Vi. q. Wescemb: de Transact. For it appeareth by the Writers of the common Law above named, that it is nothing but a composition or concord acknowledged and recorded before a competent Judge, touching some hereditament or thing immovable, that erst was in controuersie between those that be parties to the same concord, and that for the better credit of the transaction, being by imputation made in the presence of the King, because it is leued in his Court, and therefore doth it binde Women couert, being par-ties, and others whom ordinarily the Law disableth to transact, onely for this reason, that all presumption of deceit or euill meaning is excluded, where the King is priuie to the acte. This fine hath in it sue essentiall parts: the originall Writ taken out against the Conizour: the Kings licence giuing the Parties liberty to accord, (for the which he hath a fine called the Kings silver, be-ing accounted a part of the Crownes revenue.) Thirdly, the concord it selfe, which thus beginneth: Et est concordia talis &c. Fourthly, the note of the fine, which an abstract of the originall concord, beginneth in this manner: Se-inter R querentem & S & B uxorem eius deforciantes, &c. Fifthly, the foot of the fine, which is beginneth thus: Hæc est finalis concordia facta in Curia Domini Regis apud Westm: à die Pasche in quindecim dies, anno &c. so as the foot of the fine includeth all contayning the day, year and place, and before what Justices the Concord was made, q. Coke rr. 6. cap. Tey: f. 38. 39. This word fine, sometime significeth a somme of money paid for an In-come to Lands or Tenements let by lease. Sometimes an amends, pecu-niary punishment, or recompence vpon an offence committed against the King and his Lawes, or a Lord of a Maner. In which case a man is said facere finem de transgressionem cum Rege &c. Registr: Iud: fol: 25. a. Vi. q. Crompt Iustit: of peace fol: 141. b. 143. 144. q. Lamb: Eirenarch: lib: 4. cap. 16. fol: 555. But in all those diversities of uses, it hath but one signification, and that is a Final conclusion, or end of differences betweene Parties. And in this last sense, where it is used for the ending and remission of an offence, q. Bract: hath it lib: 2. cap: 15. n. 8. speaking of a Common fine that the Countie paieith to the King, for false judgments or other tres-passes, which is to be assessed by the Justices in Eyre before their departure, by the oath of Knights and other good men, vpon such as ought to pay it, with whom agreeth the Statute anno 3. Edw. 1. cap: 18. There is also a common fine in Leetes. Vide q. Kitch: fol: 13. a. q. Flet: lib. 1. cap: 48.

c fine capiendo pro terris, is a Writ lying for one that vpon conui-ction by a lury having his lands and goods taken into the Kings hand, and his body committed to prison, obtaineth fauour for a somme of money &c. to be remitted his imprisonment, and his Lands and goods to be redeliue-red vnto him. q. Registr: orig: f. 132. a.
